

By Elliott Chase
DENVER — (AP) — Religion and education took a beating today when a mother in Jackson, Colo., a mother of a child for a buttered soda-cake to feed her hungry baby. In Vegas, Nev., motorists paid as much as $100 a set for three tires.

Unsettled winds pelted the peaks of several northern Idaho mountains. And at Salt Lake City, small bewildered bands of birds moved into town and commenced chomping the leaves off shrubbery in the residential district.

A helicopter raced the stock car on a Colorado farm home to an owner's hospital.

There were but a few of the blizzards caused this month when they caused a series of Sunday school sessions at the Western States. A region which is not known for its balmy winters had the most of the blizzards of cold spells of past years were a playful prelude to the blizzards, the big white production of January, 1949.

On several occasions churches and schools went out of business because of the 20-foot snowdrifts and temperatures which rattled around the 40-below mark. The blizzards alone it was estimated that 25,000 students missed at least one day of school attendance.

Only the skiers seemed pleased with the situation. The U.S. Forest Service announced there would be no skiing in Colorado to January 15 until early summer.

Now Goes On
The weather, despite its steady blizzards, failed to stop a big ski race at Butte, Mont.

It did, however, stop the members of the tourney officials, leaving the working parts. After the most there was some question as to the winning times in the events.

The blizzards were especially bad to tavern owners and to persons who ordinarily struggle for a drink. At Butte, Colo., where 300 snow-covered motorists and bus passengers were crammed into the back of a beer hall, business was fine. A cup of coffee sold for 10 cents. A cup of weak soup sold for 10 cents. The more standard refreshments of the place sold for regular prices.

One might Dip Snuff
LONDON — (AP) — A plaintive advertisement in the London Times Saturday asked readers: "Can anyone recommend a cure for smoking for gentleman who is being impoverished by the cost of tobacco? No suggestion calling for will power, please."

In heavily-taxed Britain, a pack of 20 cigarettes costs three shillings and sixpence (70 cents).
