Model Plane Enthusiasts Await Big Contest in Eugene

Eugene will become the capital of Oregon's model plane builders under way at 10 a. m. on Howe Field on the campus. Featured during the first day will be control line events displaying speed, stunt and flying scale models. All model plane contest sponsored by the Plymouth Dealers of Oregon. There is no entrance fee and the contest will be free to spectators.

Over 250 entrants and scores of spectators are expected to view the events of this Saturday and Sunday. This annual event, being held in Eugene for the first time, is a forerunner to the Plymouth Third International Model Plane Contest at Detroit, Aug. 22-28.

Trips to Detroit
 Four state winners will be awarded prize trips to the Detroit meet where additional prizes amounting to $8750 will be awarded.

Modelers in the age group 14 to 18 years will be hot after three scholarships to any Oregon college or university. As a further incentive, trophies, cups and medals will be presented to lucky contestants during the two-day meet.

Events of this Saturday will get

Again Sunday
 Sunday morning will see contestants back at it again at Mahlon Sweet Airport with free flight events featuring free flight gas, cabin rubber-powered and stick rubber-powered ships.

Awards will be made following each day's events. When the roaring of these tiny engines finally subsides Sunday evening, new record flights and new state championships are expected to be made, said Maury Morton, contest director.

Much of the detail work of this state meeting has been handled by Eugene Plymouth dealers, members of the sponsoring Plymouth Dealers of Oregon. They are arranging for a window display in Baxter and Henning clothing store, of all trophies being offered.
