CHICAGO—(AP)—While steering his Star boat in a yacht race on Lake Michigan, Gary Comer found four persons clinging to the side of their overturned craft. Comer picked up the four, deposited them at a nearby Coast Guard station, and went on to win the race.

ANGLER LANDS ANTLER
BELVIDERE, Ill.—(AP)—Peter Carlson got more than he was fishing for when he landed an antler nearly four feet wide with two 14-inch tines. The antler, which was imbedded in the sand of the Kishwaukee River, is believed to have belonged to some prehistoric creature.

Board Delays Deschutes Dam

PORTLAND, Ore.—(AP)—The Oregon State Fish Commission Tuesday took no action on a proposal by the Northwest Power Supply Co. to build a dam on the Deschutes river in central Oregon.

Commissioners, who met and reappointed Arnie J. Suomela for a second four-year term as master fish warden, said they had not yet received an application from the northwest group and, therefore, were not prepared to discuss the proposal.

Make Protest
James Cellars of the Columbia River Salmon Packers Assn. and fish union officials appeared to protest the Pelton permit but were advised that nothing definite had been received from the applicant.

A spokesman said a recommendation could not be passed to the Hydro-Electric Commission of Oregon until formal papers have been filed.

Suomela will serve as executive head of the commission until June, 1953.

Fishermen and packer groups recommended to the commission a 26 hour closing period throughout the year and a close of the season on Dec. 1 instead of Dec. 15.

Commissioners also disclosed they were working out a legal definition of the gillnet. Sportsmen had protested certain "violations" in gillnet gear, but the commission said that the violations were being "worked out and corrected" in some streams.

Irishman Trys Long Boat Trip

CORDOVA, Alaska—(AP)—An adventurous Irishman, who took his cue from the South Pacific, arrived here safely Tuesday on the first leg of a risky North Pacific canoe trip to Seattle.

Pat Murphy, Fairbanks carpenter, hopes to complete the voyage in three months with his outrigger craft, made by lashing together two 18-foot light canoes. An outboard motor provides the power.

He started last Friday from Valdez, approximately 100 miles to the north, came down Valdez Arm and into the Gulf of Alaska. Half of this leg was in the usually turbulent gulf. Ahead of him is another 400 miles of open water before he reaches the semi-protected inside passage through a chain of islands.

This will be Murphy's third major canoe voyage. In 1930 he went down the Mississippi river from St. Paul, Minn., and then crossed the Gulf of Mexico to St. Petersburg, Fla. In 1938 he braved Atlantic storms to make a coast-wise journey from New York to Key West.
