

Aside Fund For Home Repair
 A fund to take care of home repairs has been suggested by some women's magazines. The fund suggests that housewives set aside a definite amount of money each month to take care of repairs. The fund says the best way to figure repair costs is to figure the cost of the work.

REPAIRS ALWAYS COST THEIR COST
 For instance, a small leak discovered in the attic. The repair job would have cost a few cents, but he let the matter go. A year later a wet spot appeared on the ceiling of the bedroom. It was caused by the leak. That repair job cost $10.

COLOR TRANSITION
 When choosing a wall color for the painting of a room, be sure to check your color sample against the colors of the various objects in the room that will be unchanged. Also study it against colors visible when doors to adjoining areas stand open. Smooth color transition from room to room is important in achieving complete harmony.

OLDEST OHIO HOUSE SOLD
 MANCHESTER, O. (U.P.)—The oldest house known to be occupied in Ohio, built by Gen. Nathaniel Massie in 1791, has been sold to Mrs. Myers Baldwin, granddaughter of William Baldwin. He was the former owner of the land which the Revolutionary War general got as a reward for his services.

Blue was one of the first paint colors to appear in this country in early Colonial days. A "fancy green" was made of unscrubbed pulverized coffee, mixed with the white of an egg.

On rubber and asphalt tile floors, use nothing but emulsion wax. That is a water-thinned type.

Ranch House With Smart Lines, Good Plan

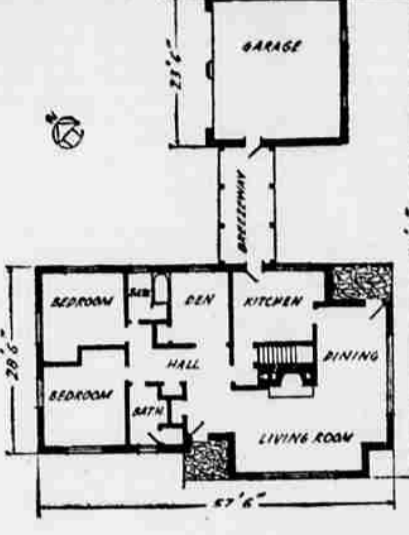

The smart lines of this ranch-type home embrace a floor plan that offers gracious living, rooms planned to avoid traffic jams, and isolated sleeping quarters.

A low gabled roof surmounting the 57-foot sweep of the front elevation makes the house appear to hug the ground closely. Architects Cull & Robinson added character by facing the exterior at the left of the entrance with white-painted brick, the remainder with rough gray stone. Gable ends of polished redwood in natural color lend more distinction. Front and rear entrances have flagstone terraces.

The house is connected to the garage at the rear with a breezeway, glass-enclosed for year-around use. A full basement contains heating plant and laundry facilities. Insulated with full-thick mineral wool in walls and ceiling, a saving of at least one-third in the annual fuel bill is possible in a house of this design, while rooms would be as much as 15 degrees cooler on hottest summer days.

A well-planned center hall affords easy access to all rooms. Two bathrooms are adjacent to the two bedrooms. The den, large enough to be used as a third bedroom, also is located in this half of the house.

The L-shaped living-dining-room is arranged with dining area convenient to the kitchen. The huge picture window at that end and another in front living-room wall afford a sense of greater spaciousness by bringing the outdoors inside.

Examine Home Before Buying

An older house can prove a good buy if the purchaser determines the value in advance by careful inspection.

Since much of the construction is hidden and a buyer cannot examine structural detail as when building a new house, it is advisable to employ a disinterested appraiser, an architect and a heating engineer to inspect the house. The appraiser will know whether the house is worth the asking price the architect will advise on costs and methods of alternations and repairs; and the heating expert will know if the heating plant is adequate.

The buyer himself can determine many points. Look for an even pour of the concrete foundation without large patches of gravel. If concrete dents or chips easily under light hammer blows, it is not sound. Tapping the basement floor will reveal hollows which may eventually let the concrete break down.

Center of the house should be supported by wood or metal lally columns topped by a girder or heavy beam through the middle of the basement.

Joists should be cross-braced and joists and studs not more than 16 inches apart. All doors should stand where stopped. If they continue to swing, frames are out of plumb, a condition difficult to remedy. Porch floors should be pitched for drainage. Try the windows for easy operation and alignment in their frames.

Masonry and plaster cracks can be a sign of more trouble to come, by further settling of the house or as a result of dampness. Examine the roof for missing or curled shingles. If shingles are defective, a completely new roof may be needed. Look for water stains on walls and ceilings that indicate roof or plumbing leaks.

Check the stairwell for sufficient head room. Triangular winding stairs are dangerous.

Don't let a flashy paint job or a recently modernized kitchen or bath distract attention from the basic structural soundness. Part of the cost of owning a home is its repair and operation and only a house in which these items can be held to a minimum is a good buy.

Rubrum Lilies On Goodpasture

F. R. Kingsley, 1300 Goodpasture Rd., wonders why more people in Lane County aren't growing rubrum lilies.

He brought some of the showy, orchid-like flowers for the Onion Editor to see the other day.

Right now he has a whole acre of them in bloom a galaxy of color, he says. He started growing the lilies three years ago and finds the climate here ideal. They multiply rapidly and are easy to raise, he says.

Kingsley feels that most people around here aren't familiar with the color-splashed rubrum variety of lily. That's why, he says, anyone who wants to see his colorful field will be welcomed.

Knox to Superintend County Fair Products

Fred G. Knox, manager of the Eugene Public Market, will be superintendent of land products for the 1949 Lane County Fair.

The department will include special individual exhibits and community collective exhibits. The individual groups will include grain and forage crops and fruit specials. The collective exhibits will be limited to agricultural organizations, and will show marketable products representative of the community; community living, including processed home foods and fresh fruits and vegetables; and community team work displayed in organizing the agricultural exhibits.

Knox urged that all members of the county granges do everything possible to collect entries for the community exhibits. Outstanding products of their farms may be shown in the divisions which include grain and forage crops, horticultural, vegetables and floral exhibits.

Variety of Stains Are Available

Wooden shingles on a roof should be stained, never painted. Moisture will get under the paint film as it wears off, causing the wood to rot. Preservative stains are available in many colors, and since they penetrate the wood, the danger of rot is avoided.

Shingles used as siding on exterior walls can be painted without harm because water drains off the side walls before it can seep under the shingles.

Oil paint should not be applied to shingles which have been stained since most stains will bleed through the paint. Best procedure is to cover stained shingles with one coat of aluminum paint, then apply the oil pigment.

Stippling is an effect produced by striking a painted surface while it is still wet with the ends of the bristles of a special stippling brush. Roller stipplers are also used as time savers. The result is a uniform pebbly surface.

Sparrow's Corn Has Tall Rival

Corn grows tall on Beacon Drive, too, according to Mrs. Charles Thompson, 685 Beacon Drive.

She says her corn which was planted in May is now 13 foot tall and "going higher". Four or five ears of the golden stuff repose on each stalk, too.

Mrs. Thompson's report followed closely one from Frank Sparrow, who lives out on Frank Sparrow Way. His is nearly as tall and he was in the Onion Editor's office asking if perhaps Route F has a warning light to put on his corn, so the airplanes could go around.

West Pine Shipments Reported Holding Steady

PORTLAND — (P) — Orders for Western pine lumber increased in the week ended Aug. 13, while shipments and production held about steady, the Western Pine Assn. reported.

In comparison with weekly August averages for the past three years, production is up sharply, but both orders and shipments are down.

SMALL WINDOWS
 A house that has window openings of different sizes or shapes is likely to have a jumbled appearance, if the windows are emphasized by different color treatment than the walls. It is advisable to conceal this lack of unity by painting them the same color as the house. Shutters, if any, should be removed from the small windows which are dissimilar in area, leaving only those of the larger and more uniform size.

One-quarter pint of paint or enamel covers approximately 15 square feet.

Store Awnings With Care for Next Year

When awnings are taken down at the end of the summer, they should be carefully inspected and repaired. For seams that need restitching, use a good waxed thread.

After repairs are made, awnings should be scrubbed with mild soap, and thoroughly rinsed and dried. Metal parts should be lightly oiled. Hang awnings on storage racks with as few folds as possible.

Koroosal Chintz New And Smart

An interesting development in upholstery and drapery fabrics is the new Koroosal, chintz-patterned materials. Waterproof, and resistant to dust, stain, sun and mildew, the fabric is easily kept clean by sponging with soap and water. This makes the material especially desirable for a child's room.

Boudoir chairs covered in these new chintz-like fabrics, matching draperies, and yard goods are now available in local stores.
