

K F Cemetery Plan Blasted

KLAMATH FALLS — (AP) — The National Association for Advancement of Colored People has thrown a legal pitch at the city of Klamath Falls and its plan to allocate 72 lots in a new cemetery for burial of non-Caucasians. Ten NAACP members, along with Berkeley, Cal., attorney Orville Edder, appeared before the city council to protest what they termed segregation in the cemetery and Edder told the council he considered the allocation plan a violation of the "equal rights and protection" clause of the U.S. constitution. Organization Lawyer Edder said he had represented NAACP on several occasions and had been summoned to Klamath Falls to look into the burial issue. The matter arose several weeks ago when a negro war veteran was refused burial in the new cemetery because of restrictions in deeds to cemetery lots which provided that the cemetery be used for Caucasian interment only.

Since that time the restrictive clause has been deleted from lot deeds, but the city and a cemetery committee, trying to work out the problem of negro burials, hit upon the plan of allocating 72 lots in a certain portion of the cemetery for non-Caucasians. Protests Plan

It is this NAACP is protesting. Mayor Bob Thompson told Edder the council was still studying the burial issue and would not be hurried into making a decision, but City Attorney Henry Perkins said he could find no legal bar to such a segregation plan for burials.

Gold Is King In Devaluation Money Change

NEW YORK — (AP) — Devaluation has made gold the king around the world, with the dollar as crown prince. That's because gold still is the yardstick of value for money, and the United States has more gold than anyone else, although you can't exchange your paper dollar for gold.

price for gold is $35 a fine ounce. When the British cut their pound to $2.80 from $4.03, they also raised the price of gold to 250 shillings a fine ounce from 172 shillings 3 pence.

That puts the British pound and British gold on the same devalued footing against the American dollar and American gold. Other countries devaluing their currencies either have or will shortly raise their gold price to keep in line.

The United States now owns about $24,500,000,000 worth of gold, more than 60 per cent of the world's known supply. And stands ready to buy gold from all comers at $35 an ounce.

Buy Up Gold

Here is why everybody is rushing to buy stocks in gold mining companies. South Africa, the world's biggest gold producer, before devaluation sold one million ounces of gold for 172,500,000 South African shillings, equal to $35 million. After devaluation which was the same as the British, one million ounces brings 250 million South African shillings — still worth $35 million.

Consequently, South African gold miners are reaping a handsome profit in their own currency through increased prices for their golden product. If you own stock in a South African gold mining company, you stand to profit from increased dividends payable out of increased profits.

Rail Strike Looms

CHICAGO — (AP) — Possibility of a strike against a second major railroad—the 11,000-mile Burlington System—developed Wednesday.

A strike against the Burlington has been authorized by four operating brotherhoods in a drive to speed up handling of grievance claims.

BOEING SHIFT OPPOSED

SPOKANE — (AP) — Opposition to any shift of work from the Seattle plant of the Boeing Airplane Company, and pleas for the tightening of Pacific Northwest defenses and easing off of restriction on aerial border crossings were voiced Tuesday by delegates to the International North-west Aviation Council.

The temperature of the human body was formerly used as the base point for thermometers.
