The public is invited to attend and watch the spectacle from the grand stand, without charge.

Judges have been selected, but their identity will be kept secret until the judging is completed. Six prizes are offered to the costumed riders.

Quota Fetes UN Birthday

Celebration of the United Nations birthday this month was made the theme of the social meeting of Eugene Quota Club Monday evening, a dinner in the Osburn Hotel. The dinner was preceded by reading of the United Nations Prayer by Mrs. John Francis White. Dr. Frederick G. Hunter, a member of the United Nations Committee from this area, was the speaker.

Dr. Hunter, introduced by Mrs. L. W. Tinker, program chairman, chose as his topic: "Toward Permanent Freedom." He traced the history of United Nations, which was founded as an instrument toward the attainment of peace. Freedom in the United States, he said, evolved in its ancestry from the time of the Magna Charta in Britain to the drafting of the Constitution.

All progressing agreements were charters to protect and perpetuate the right of human beings under government, and the United Nations, he said, is the latest charter in this evolution of freedom. Through it, American rights may become universal. He cited the Japanese peace treaty as an example of the functioning of United Nations.

Mrs. Ray C. Smith, president, led Quotarians in introductions. Guests were Dr. and Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Emilie Lundy, honorary member of the club.

Eugenean Back From Israel

Back from a trip which was to be for two months, but was extended to more than a year, is Miss Marjorie Rosenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Rosenberg in Eugene. Nine months of her time were spent in Israel, where she took employment with an American firm.

Jerusalem she found fascinating, "as any person interested at all in sociology must," she said, because of the variety of people. All races and faiths are represented there, she said, and the costumes and languages are of all countries of the world. Sometimes it was necessary to converse through two interpreters to reach a fourth person, but there is much English spoken.

"So many new plans are in operation in Jerusalem . . . it is as if the United States should bring here 60 million persons in one year; the situation would be comparable. It is like the Tower of Babel." She found particularly interesting the experimental collective settlements, mainly agricultural in purpose. She remained in Israel from October until July, then visited other countries, staying longest in Italy and Holland.

Miss Rosenberg was charmed with villages in the Netherlands, particularly Volendam, where native dress is worn and the people cling to old folk ways. She brought numerous souvenirs from her trip.
