New Uses Found For Empty Bottles

NEW YORK—(NEA) — Three cheers for the lady from Minneapolis, Minn., who has found a new use for old pickled herring jars. They make dandy terrariums for growing ferns and things like that—if you happen to need a terrarium and have a stock of used pickled herring jars.

There is also cheering news for people who have been wracking their brains wondering what to do with their empty embalming fluid bottles. Stacked on end and stuck in cement, they make a fine still shaker.

These tidbits of useful knowledge came to light when the Glass Bottle Blowers Association held a contest to find new uses for old bottles. There were more than 500 entrants, who had turned old bottles into everything from statues to false teeth holders.

Since every decent American home has a cache of old bottles in the basement or attic, these tips on how to transform useless old bottles into handy things like terrariums and false teeth holders should come in handy.

Among the entries were the following:

A flashlight, made from an olive jar. You have to screw a bulb into the cap, stick in a couple of batteries and hook them up. The light supposedly flashes on when you tighten the cap and turns off when you loosen it. First, of course, remove and eat olives.

A pickle jar was magically turned into an aquarium. It was a big pickle jar, to allow the fish room to swim. A gherkin jar won't do, unless you have some gherkin-sized fish.

President Still Needs Man To Wash Government Linen

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman's abrupt news conference statement that he would set the conditions under which government corruption may be investigated illuminates his difficulty in finding an investigator.

The first to avoid the investigation assignment was Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman—the No. 2 man in the Justice Department. Perlman argued that his investigation would be challenged by many persons as a whitewash regardless of its merits. His idea was that the public would not accept an investigation by a man already identified with the administration.

Opposed by Federal Judge Thomas G. Murphy accepted the job, then turned it down. That was the advice of other federal judges who object to their brethren leaving the bench to wash dirty linen.

Another choice was a distinguished American who refuses to acknowledge that any offer was made to him. But the offer was made. The nation would have acclaimed the President's choice. No doubt about that. White House Press Secretary Joseph Short refused to comment on the choice in any way.

But this gentleman accepted subject to conditions made by himself instead of conditions made by the President. There were three of them.

1. The investigators were to have free access to all government records.

2. They were to have the subpoena power and authority to question witnesses under oath.

3. Mr. Truman was asked to guarantee that the Justice Department would prosecute any individuals fingered by the investigators.

Nothing came of that. It is a month now since Mr. Truman cut short his Florida vacation to hurry back to Washington. It is three weeks since he told a news conference that he planned quick, drastic action to clean up government. He said then he anticipated no Cabinet changes in the clean-up process. He quoted the following to be quoted from his conference remarks:

"Wrong doers have no house with me, no matter who they are or how big they are."

Frustrating Month
In a frustrating month the President has been unable to get his investigation going. This is a worrisome situation, and the worry is reflected in the President's demeanor.

He is not so sure now about no Cabinet changes. After last week's news conference, reporters agreed it looked like Attorney General J. Howard McGrath was on the way out.

That might solve the investigation problem. A new and popularly accepted attorney general could proceed at once. The A.G. is the government's law enforcement officer. He has all the investigating tools including the subpoena power to summon witnesses before grand juries and courts. And his witnesses are under oath.

Farms Offered Homesteaders

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Another section of the Tule Lake Basin in Modoc County, will be opened for homesteading soon. The Bureau of Reclamation here said no date had been set for filling homesteading claims in the area near the Oregon border.

Homesteading in the old lake bed was permitted first in the 1930s. Some 88 farms were distributed to veterans in a giant lottery after World War II. Additional farms were offered for homesteading in 1947 and 1948.

Some 27 million dollars worth of crops have been taken from the reclaimed lands in the past five years, the bureau said.
