Prison Expert
Speaks Before
CG Churches

COTTAGE GROVE—John Kilpatrick, the director of juvenile protection and offender rehabilitation for the Oregon Council of churches will speak at the First Baptist Church Sunday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m. He will also speak Monday evening at 7:30 at the Methodist Church to the men's church groups of the city at the invitation of the Methodist Men's Fellowship.

Kilpatrick is a white-haired Englishman "with a fighting heart." He is retired as a Portland school trustee officer and has saved a new career for himself in mending the broken lives of men, women and boys and girls sentenced to prisons or reformatories.

He works directly with convicts and ex-convicts, in an effort to fit them mentally, spiritually, and occupationally for a "straight" life.

He visits correctional institutions throughout the Pacific Northwest regularly, to consult with prison authorities, to note defects and to pick up ideas that might prove useful somewhere else. He corresponds with friends, relatives and employers of ex-convicts to help keep their men on the right track.

He gives an impressive number of talks before school groups, churches and civic clubs. His endless round of speeches in the schools has one purpose: to prevent crimes before they happen. One of the important projects he has in is appealing to service clubs and churches for Christian homes for certain boys and girls. He also speaks of the need for counselors and chaplains at our Oregon state penitentiary.
