Fire Destroys Winter Resort

SPOKANE, Wash. — (UP) — A construction electrician was burned to death Wednesday night when a fire destroyed the state-owned Mt. Spokane Ski Lodge 12 miles north of here at an estimated loss of $250,000, state and county authorities reported.
The victim was not identified, but John Vanderzucht, director of state parks, said the worker was believed to have been an employee of Brown-Johnson Electric Co. The victim was working in the lodge's new wing, which was scheduled to be opened in only two weeks.
The three-story timber structure burned before fire trucks could reach the mile-high site on the 5878-foot mountain. Fire fighting equipment was dispatched when the alarm was turned in at 6:30 p.m., but the vehicles could not negotiate the snow-clogged, steep roads leading to the lodge.
The state patrol said there are no water supplies on the mountain with which to fight fire.
