Lutherans Plan New Rest Home

Old Sunset Home Will Be Replaced

The management of Sunset Home for the aged in Eugene announced Thursday plans for constructing a new home at an estimated $200,000.

Merv O. Dahl, secretary of the board of directors for Severson Memorial Home Assn., Inc., owner and operator of Sunset Home, said decision was reached at the annual board meeting in Emmaus Lutheran Church Monday. Nearly 70 members of the corporation attended.

Current plans call for sale of present homesite at 172 W. 12th Ave., Dahl said, and construction of a one-story structure on a five-acre site to be announced later.

There are now 71 elderly persons living at the home, founded in 1925. It is open to any Christian 65 years of age or older. It is operated by Lutherans but is non-denominational in membership. Dahl said no fund campaign is contemplated as yet; as the board believes funds on hand, supplemented by sale of the homesite, should provide for construction.

At the annual meeting these board members were elected to the board: Phil Nordling, H. F. Hansen, the Rev. Ingward Olsen, and Merv Dahl.

Damage Suit Filed in Court

Willie Mae Jeremiah, of West Kelso, Wash., is asking $54,532 damages in an action filed against Joseph G. Gallaher of 390 E. 10th, Eugene.

Her claim arises out of a head-on collision with the defendant, which occurred on Highway 58 on May 13, 1951.

Besides abrasions, contusions and lacerations, she alleges she was unconscious for five days as a result of the wreck. Other injuries listed in the complaint are shattered ribs, one shattered leg and fractures of the ankle, wrist and pubis.

Court Heavy--One Laugh

Many of the ordinary kinds of cases and a couple which don't come along quite as often made up the 103-case docket for Wednesday night's session of the Eugene Municipal Court.

Judge John Barber, the arresting officer, the defendant and persons in the courtroom got several smiles and a few laughs in the trial of the city's case against Lenord Wayne Walker, 2875 Division St., charged with "driving in the embrace of another."

Police Officer Door, who made the arrest Friday night, said that a girl riding in the car next to Walker had leaned across in front of him, obscuring his view of the road and causing him to swerve out of his lane of traffic.

Walker maintained that his girl first was wiping off a fogged-up side window and then lit a cigarette for him. He always had control of his car, he asserted. Asked by Judge Barber if he would care to question Walker about his testimony, Officer Door said:

"I'D JUST LIKE to know what —naw, I guess not."

Walker was found guilty and fined $5.

A man who made a right turn from the left traffic lane on Oak St. between 5th and 6th and struck a car on his right in doing so was fined $15. He was Fred Wullschleger, 1692 Villard St., who told the court that he was turning into a narrow alley which was impossible for him to enter from the proper lane.

Judge Barber told him that he would have to be sure that there were no cars in the right lane if it were necessary for him to swerve into the left lane to make his turn.

Other cases involving hazardous moving violations decided at court sessions of Feb. 15, 18 and 20 were:

Medicine Finally Stops Distress of Hiccups

SPOKANE—(U.P.)—Retired Railroader John P. Dundon drew his first hiccup-free sigh Wednesday in nine days and said "a barrel of water" he drank for relief "was a waste of time."

Dundon, 83, said the hiccups—one every three seconds—stopped after he took some medicine prescribed by his physician.

He got a "tiny bit exasperated" from the ordeal Tuesday night, and a police emergency crew eased his distress with pure oxygen. Later the medicine took effect, he said.

"Got so I couldn't talk or eat or sleep or anything without having to stop all the time with that darn hiccupping," he said.
