MILITARY NOTES

Lt. Claire Finlayson, former commanding officer of the 853rd Order of Battle Detachment in Eugene, has received orders to go to the Far East. He has been on active duty since October at Louisville Medical Depot in Kentucky and at Camp Pickett, Va. He will arrive in Eugene about March 24 for a visit with his family before reporting to Ft. Lawton for shipment. His wife is president of the local ROA Ladies.

Col. John H. Rodman, chief of Oregon Military District, this week visited ORC and ROTC offices in Eugene.

Army reservists at 8 p.m. Tuesday will hear Claude E. Dawson, manager of the local social security office, tell how his agency's regulations affect the reservist.

SFC Lowell A. Martin, assistant unit instructor for the ORC, spent three days last week supervising reserve training at Roseburg and Coos Bay.

THE LATEST move by the Air Force to induce enlistments is the relaxing of requirements for WAFs. A girl no longer need have a high school diploma to qualify—but she must be able to pass an equivalent test. (For once the Army has tougher enlistment requirements, at least regarding women; the WAC still demands the diploma). Previously, the Air Force reduced its age minimum for aviation cadets from 20 to 19.

Lt. Cmdr. A. D. Parker, commanding officer for the Navy's Oregon Recruiting District, was in Eugene Thursday, making his quarterly inspection of the recruiting sub-station in the Eugene postoffice.

The Navy at present has an unlimited quota for enlistments, and promises immediate processing of all applicants. Age limits are 17 to 31. Those who have taken pre-induction physicals but who have not yet received induction notices are still eligible.

The Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center in Eugene is being used by 14 organizations now. Three Naval Reserve units meet there weekly. A Marine Reserve unit is now in the process of formation there, and ten civilian groups meet in the west Eugene building regularly.

Six use the shooting range. They are Springfield Pistol Club, Springfield Rifle Team, Moose Rifle Club, VFW Junior Rifle Club, Eugene police and state police.

THE EUGENE Yacht Club uses facilities for a weekly navigation class. The Navy Mothers Club gathers there monthly, and Sea Scouts and Explorer Scouts use it as headquarters.

Other organizations such as the Girl Scouts, Reserve Officers Assn., Nutrition Study Group and Gold Star Mothers have used it on occasion.

Lt. Cmdr. George Ennis, officer-in-charge, explains that there is still plenty of room for other organizations and that there is no charge.

The center's rifle and pistol team competed recently in a three-way pistol match at Corvallis. Other participants were Corvallis and Springfield pistol clubs.

Escapee Returned To Salem Prison

MEDFORD, Ore.—(U.P.)—George Frederick, 28, was back in the custody of law officers Thursday after he walked away from the Oregon State prison farm annex Feb. 29.

The former trustee was recognized by state police officer Russell Brendle and arrested on a downtown street here Wednesday. He was returned to Salem.

Congress Urged To End Controls

Chamber Asks Halt To Rent, Wage Acts

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The U. S. Chamber of Commerce urged Congress Wednesday to end wage and price controls by June 30.

It also suggested rent controls be wiped out since they have ceased to operate except in a few localities.

Clem D. Johnston of Roanoke, Va., director and chairman of the chamber's policy committee, told the Senate Banking Committee other provisions of the Defense Production Act should not be extended beyond March 1, 1953.

INFLATION. Johnston said, should be curbed by credit control, taxation, savings and monetary and fiscal policies.

The latter, he added, should include reductions in federal spending and control of credit expansion by the Federal Reserve Board instead of by the Treasury.

In other testimony, an official of Safeway Stores, Inc., charged that the "record of the administration with regard to the prediction of economic events to come is not good."

MILTON L. SELBY, Safeway's secretary-treasurer, told the committee that the administration "has asked power to control inflation on several occasions when the situation facing the nation was a deflationary one."

Speaking for the National Association of Food Chains, Selby said grocers have been "seriously hurt" by price controls and by "completely inadequate protest and appear machinery and by maladministration of the law by OPS."

Reserve Fund Grows

SALEM—(AP)—The Oregon Unemployment Compensation Commission's reserve fund gained $2,200,000 the past year, despite higher benefit payments.

The fund now totals 76 million dollars.
