

House Kindly To BPA Funds

Lion's Share Goes To Western Oregon

By FRANK W. VAILLE
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee used a light touch Friday on the Department of Interior's proposed Pacific Northwest program for the 12 months beginning July 1.

The report approved by the committee recommended appropriations totaling $94,527,400 for various power and reclamation programs in Oregon and Washington.

BONNEVILLE Power Administration was cut back from $70,286,400 to $66,523,400 in its request for construction funds, and was given the full $6,600,000 it asked for operation and maintenance.

The Bureau of Reclamation escaped unscathed on its project requests in the two states. The committee approved the full 20 million sought for the Columbia Basin, $106,000 asked for the Yakima-Roza project, and $368,000 for the Klamath development in Oregon.

THE COLUMBIA Basin appropriation includes $225,000 to carry on feasibility studies in connection with proposed construction of a third powerhouse at Grand Coulee Dam.

Most of the 3 1/2 million dollar Bonneville cut resulted from elimination of proposed interconnections with other power systems. For the second year in a row, the committee rejected proposals for a La Grande-Baker, Ore., transmission line to tie-in with the Idaho Power Co. That eliminated $1,173,000.

ANOTHER $90,000 was slashed with the rejection, for the third successive year, of the proposed intertie at Klamath Falls, Ore., between Bonneville and the Central Valley, Calif., reclamation project system.

The lion's share of the Bonneville Power Administration's 1952 budget has been earmarked for projects in western Oregon.

Specific information on the limited budget cuts made by the House Appropriations Committee had not reached Eugene Friday, BPA area headquarters here reported. However, it appeared from press wire reports that approximately $31 million has been left in the budget proposal for use in this region or on projects to increase power transmission into the western section of Oregon.

Fans to Spend Day in Cooler

Two Cleveland High School students were scheduled to spend Friday in Eugene's city jail after being arrested at 3:15 a. m. on charges of being drunk in an auto.

Taken into municipal court at 8:30, the boys were sentenced by Judge John L. Barber, Jr., to spend the day in jail—missing several games in the state basketball tournament they came from Portland to see.

Judge Barber directed, however, that the boys be released about 7 p. m., in time to make it to McArthur Court to see their team in a quarter-final tournament game.

Donald Gene Bresse, 18, and Derald Raymond Thornton, 17, told the arresting officer that they had been to a party in a Glenwood motel before they were taken into custody. The car in which they were stopped at 10th and Pearl Sts. was driven by another youth whom the officer found had not been drinking.

Plane Missing In Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — Air Force and civilian planes renewed their search Friday for a light plane piloted by a Walla Walla architect who vanished on a flight from Seattle to his home Wednesday.

Stanley G. Pace, about 42, disappeared in his six-place maroon and yellow Bellanca plane while on the last leg of a return trip from Vancouver, B. C.

Three air rescue planes from McChord AFB were stymied by low clouds in attempts to scan the rugged, snow-covered Cascade range Thursday.

Reports that parachute flares had been seen near Butte, Mont., and that a plane had been heard near Yakima Wednesday night were investigated without success.

House Tax Investigators Threaten Perjury Action

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP) — House tax investigators Friday raised a threat of perjury action against William Power Maloney, New York attorney, after a stormy session of questioning about his relations with Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald, Sen. Bridges (R-NH) and a multi-million dollar tax case.

Dismissing Maloney from the witness chair, members of the House Ways and Means subcommittee voted to send a transcript of his testimony to the Justice Department for consideration of whether a charge of perjury—lying when under oath—was justified.

MALONEY IS a former special assistant to the attorney general. He left the government post in 1946 and has since been in private practice. At the present tax scandal hearings he has been acting as counsel for Grunewald.

In the committee hearing, Rep. Kean (R-NJ) accused Maloney of making perjured statements at a closed meeting of the committee.

He said he referred to Maloney's denials that he ever borrowed any money from Grunewald.

In public testimony, Maloney said he had been a friend of Grunewald, mysterious figure in Washington officialdom, for many years.

He said, however, that he had "absolutely no recollection" of ever receiving $5,000 in loans from Grunewald, between 1944—when Maloney was a federal official—and 1948.

The committee produced a letter, addressed to Grunewald's tax accountant and signed by Maloney, which said that $5,000 of Grunewald's 1948 income represented repayment of a loan to Maloney.

Maloney also testified he had "absolutely no recollection" of ever representing Grunewald while he Maloney was with the Justice Department.

The committee then produced a report by special treasury agents which said Maloney's intercession in Grunewald's behalf during a blackmarket whiskey investigation in 1943-44.

MALONEY said that was nine years ago, but conceded if the report was made it might have happened.

"Do you recall talking to Mr. Grunewald or Charlie Burke (Grunewald's chauffeur) about black market whiskey?" he was asked.

"No," replied Maloney. Bridges' name was brought in with testimony from Maloney that he asked the senator as a "friend" to make inquiries at the Internal Revenue Bureau about a tax case.

The investigators developed last fall that both Bridges and Grunewald made inquiries at the Internal Revenue Bureau three years ago about the tax troubles of Hyman Harvey Klein, Baltimore wholesale liquor dealer and importer.

The government had placed a five-million-dollar jeopardy tax assessment against Klein. The case still is pending.

Maloney testified that his own interest and that of Bridges in the case was strictly a matter of friendship.

ANOTHER U.S. Senator, Owen Brewster (R-Me) popped dramatically into hearings on Grunewald's tax affairs Thursday.

In a voluntary committee appearance, Sen. Brewster acknowledged he used Grunewald in 1950 to funnel $10,000 into the Republican primary campaigns of Sens. Nixon of California and Young of North Dakota.

At the time, Brewster was chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

It was "against the rules" for the committee to take sides in a primary, Brewster conceded, but he did so anyway through Grunewald.

Dozers in Battle To Free Livestock

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Army bulldozers Friday went to the rescue of 600,000 head of starving livestock in North and Central Nevada. Twenty dozers were sent from Ogden, Utah, to attack ranch roads clogged by snow and clear the way for rushing in feed.

Other bulldozers from the naval base at Hawthorne, Nev., opened a 35-mile long lane through snow to 2,000 marooned residents in Mono County, East-Central California. Residents were low on fuel but had food.

IN NORTHERN California, highway plows bit into snowdrifts which closed the two major highways over the mountains to Nevada—U. S. 40 and 50—Tuesday. Their reopening was expected shortly.

Girl Students Counter-raid Men's Dorms

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Spring came bustin' out all over the usually staid University of Michigan campus Thursday night. It took a near-riotous form.

Bands of youths raided women's dormitories and the women raided back.

Assessing the damages Friday, university authorities found some broken windows and smashed doors. They blamed a spontaneous outbreak of spring fever. At its peak an estimated 2,500 students were involved.

The fun started with bands of men students invading the women's dorms, scattering underclothing about. The women formed counter-raids and city police were called.

A force of 10 officers responded but by that time the mob had split up into smaller groups which climbed on dormitory roofs, threw mud at fraternity and sorority houses and rocked the cars of police who tried to restore order.

The seven hours of revelry simmered down around 1:30 a. m. when spirits were dampened by a light drizzle and a fire hose was turned on the last band of marauders by residents of one of the women's dormitories.

In the Rockies two snowstorms disrupted ground and air travel and left Denver streets almost impassable. The storm belt extended some 150 miles from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Colorado Springs.

The biggest crisis was in Nevada where Gov. Charles Russell declared a state of emergency to qualify for federal assistance.

Promptly 20 Army bulldozers were ordered sent to help save an estimated $18,000,000 worth of imperiled cattle and sheep.

The first success was scored Thursday by an Idaho State Department plow. It opened a road for the feeding of 4000 head of cattle in the Owyhee Indian Reservation in Nevada's northern Elko County. Behind the plow came 100 tons of hay in six trucks.

While the bulldozers from Ogden went to work, the Fourth Air Force at Hamilton Field, north of San Francisco, put its planes on a standby basis. They are prepared to drop feed, emulating the hay-lift of 1949, if need be.

MOST of the menaced cattle are in Elko County, where ranch roads have been snow-blocked more than two months.

Most of the 2000 persons who had been isolated by California's Mono County were north and south of the town of Leavening.

Thursday Navy bulldozers cut a road from Hawthorne to a point just north of Leavening, a distance of 53 miles. The road connects with Highway 95, open north and south in Nevada.

The Seabees expected to get through Friday to June Lake where 125 persons were stranded at a lodge with fuel scanty but food plentiful. The afflicted area is 180 miles east of San Francisco.

Union Pacific Porter Shot by Passenger

LIMON, Colo. (AP) — A passenger aboard the Union Pacific streamliner "Pony Express" summoned a porter then shot him four times.

The Limon town marshal, called to the scene when the passengers aboard the train were thrown into near panic by the shooting, in turn shot the passenger when he refused to hand over his pistol.

THE PORTER, James R. Ervin of Denver, was wounded three times in the left thigh and once in the right by bullets fired from under a blanket covering Emory Moore of Kansas City, Mo.

Ervin said he knew no reason why Moore should shoot him.

Car's Driver Faces Charge

Reckless driving was charged to William Gray Paulus, 729 11th Ave., Thursday evening after his car went out of control at 11th and Patterson Sts., went over a parking, turned completely around and crashed into a parked vehicle.

Damages to Paulus' 1946 coupe were estimated at $275, and those to the parked sedan, owned by Ray Spooner, 651 E. 11th Ave., at $230.

Spooner's car was pushed forward by the impact and into a telephone pole, causing four lines to go dead. That added another $75 to the estimated damages done by the 5:45 p. m. mishap.

Thirteen minutes later, at 7th and Chermelon Sts., another accident led to a charge of failing to yield the right-of-way. Ticketed was Fred Braaten of Drain, driver of a 1961 sedan that collided with a 1930 tudor operated by Milton M. Shumway, 1805 Jefferson St.

Police estimated damages to the cars at $35 and $150, respectively.

Forgery Brings 6-Year Term

Wayne Hodges, 31, of Shawnee, Okla., refused services of an attorney, waived time to plead and was sentenced and was given six years in the penitentiary after pleading guilty to a charge of forgery.

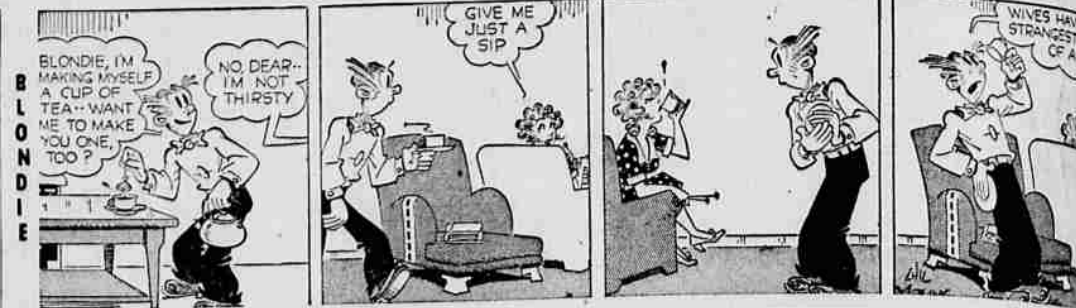

His record disclosed he has previously been sentenced to one to ten years in San Quentin for car theft.

Also in circuit court, Charles Randall Pruitt was placed on three years' probation after pleading guilty to a charge of forgery. It was Pruitt's first offense, he has no previous record.

Former UO Teacher Dies at Claremont

Word was received in Eugene Friday morning of the death of Andrew Fish, for many years a member of the history department faculty at the University of Oregon.

Mr. Fish died in Claremont, Calif., where he had lived since his retirement. He is survived by his wife, Dorothy and a daughter, Cynthia.
