Eisenhower Untried Yet, Political Views Still Vague

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—The record of Eisenhower the general was so distinguished that in the Military field he is practically a public monument.
But in his new role as Eisenhower the politician he still has to state his case.

While he was still in this country, in uniform as a soldier or in civilian as president of Columbia University, he did not arouse any widely outspoken antagonisms for anything he said.
Actually, anything he's said to date, except in foreign affairs, has been in the most general terms and not at all specific. This is understandable because of his position.

SINCE HE SAID he wasn't a candidate for anything, he wasn't under compulsion to take a flat-footed stand on any domestic issue.
And he would not have been the only one to consider it inconsistent with his job as commander of the Atlantic Pact Army if he issued bulletins from his Paris headquarters on American labor, farming, Korea, China, finance or taxes.

He indicated his sensitivity about making political speeches in uniform when he said Saturday he'd resign from the Army, if nominated by the Republican convention, so he would be "free to speak, like any other citizen, on any subject."
As a soldier Eisenhower has enjoyed sunny weather, which is quite different from the political climate where it rains dead cats and you get blamed as fast for what you didn't do as for what you did.

HE GOT A TASTE of this last night from a fellow-republican, Sen. Welker of Idaho, who so far hasn't come out in support of anyone but said he might support the general if he knew where he stood.
Welker said: "It is hard to believe the Republican party is going to consider the nomination of a man whose views on all public issues are vague."
This at least was a nudge to the general that the days are coming to an end when—as a non-candidate for anything—he could enjoy the luxury of not having to be specific on affairs at home.

He returns about June 1. The Republican convention, which may nominate him for president, opens July 7. Except for a speech at Abilene, Kas., Eisenhower says he has no plans between the date of his return and the convention opening.
But unless, and until, he's nominated, he'll be in the Army. If he follows, until then, his past policy of not getting into domestic controversies, the convention will not know where he stands on a host of issues.

IF, NEVERTHELESS, it nominates him it will be doing so on his personality, his record as a military leader and diplomat extraordinary, and in the belief he could win, but not on his clearly-expressed ideas for running the country.
Certainly there's danger for Eisenhower or any candidate to take a strong position on the issues which have split the country into belligerent factions. One bad phrase could ruin him.

If he's the nominee it's possible his advisers might want him to go right up to election day without even getting too precise about anything, thinking he could breeze in anyway, although in 1948 the breeze which Dewey felt gave him political pneumonia.

And it's possible the majority of voters would take the general just as he is, without knowing anything more about him. But it's doubtful Eisenhower would go for this, judging from his Paris promise that he'll campaign intensively if nominated and be "free to speak . . . on any subject."

deep interest in knowing where he stands on a host of issues. Northern Negro voters and Southern whites will want to know his position on a Fair Employment Practices Commission; labor and management will expect to learn his views on them; farmers have an interest in what he thinks about benefits for them. Then there's federal aid to education, compulsory health insurance, housing, taxes.
