Fires Damage Store and Cabin

Patrol, Engineers, Fight 2 Blazes

Dexter Sporting Goods Store on old Highway 58 in uptown Dexter was extensively damaged by fire Saturday night and a two-story cabin at nearby Horseshoe Trailer Court early Sunday was burned to the ground. Both fires apparently started near the roofs.

Teodora P. Garza, who lived in the cabin with two other men, said he awoke to see the whole upstairs bedroom burning. He escaped uninjured but could not save clothes worth $100 belonging to himself, nor $200 worth belonging to his friends, who spent the night elsewhere. Mr. and Mrs. Victor Copper own the trailer court.

The store fire was confined to the rear of the building, in the nearly finished apartment of owners, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cole, and in a cabinet shop.

A large assortment of rifles, shotguns, ammunition and fishing tackle was carried out of the burning building by volunteers. Quantities of toys, fishing rods and novelties were burned on shelves of the front retail room.

Insurance adjusters said Sunday some of the damaged stock and fixtures will be salvaged. There was $2000 insurance on the $30,000 stock and $1000 on the building. A loss estimated could not be made Sunday. Cole said the back rooms are so badly burned, this part of the building will have to be razed.

Copper said insurance covers his cabin but not the furniture.

Bert Neet of Eastern Lane Fire Patrol and the U.S. Engineers' fire crew with truck answered an 8:30 p.m. call to the store and a 2 a.m. call to the cabin. The cabin burned too fast to be saved, but nearby trailers and cabins were saved except for some paint blisters.

Nerves Control Internal Organs

Nerves Compose the "electrical wiring system" of the body. The brain is the main center. It receives communications from all parts of the body and sends out controlling and life-giving impulses to all the tissues. It matters not whether we consider the liver or the stomach, or the hand or the foot, all are dependent on a normal supply of nerve energy. The chief assistant to the brain is the spinal cord. This is the electrical switchboard of the body, a place where intricate nerve connections are made. The spinal cord leaves the brain at the base of the skull and enters the spinal column. As the spinal cord descends it gives off thirty-one pairs of spinal nerves which pass between segments of the spinal column and radiate to all parts of the body—the internal as well as the external organs.

The question is frequently asked how can chiropractic cure stomach, liver, heart, lung, kidney or intestinal trouble when the chiropractor adjusts the spinal column. By correcting spinal subluxations and removing irritation and interference from the nerves passing in between the spinal segments the Chiropractic adjustments are able to influence all internal organs. This is no more unusual than when you press an electric doorbell button and automatically make a bell ring in an upstairs apartment. In an analogous fashion remote causes in the nerve system can produce remote effects —interference of nerve supply at the spine can produce disease effect in internal organs. Because of the extensive connection of the nerve system to all parts of the body, the chiropractor is able to reach the internal organs and correct disease by restoring normal nerve communication.
