

Judge Pine Tells Steel Case Opinion

WASHINGTON—(P)—Here are the salient quotes from Judge Andrew Pine's opinion in the steel seizure case:

The fundamental issue is whether the seizure is or is not authorized by law.

There is no express grant of power in the Constitution authorizing the President to direct this seizure. There is no enactment of Congress authorizing it.

THE GOVERNMENT of the United States was created by ratification of the Constitution. It derives its authority wholly from the powers granted to it by the Constitution, which is the only source of power authorizing action by any branch of government.

He, the defendant government counsel, next refers to seizures by former Presidents... without the authority of statute, but it is difficult to follow his argument that... I believe that the contemplated strike, if it came, with all its awful results, would be less injurious to the public than the injury which would flow from a timorous judicial recognition that there is some basis for this claim to unlimited and unrestrained executive power, which would be implicit in a failure to grant the injunction.

ENOUGH HAS BEEN said to show the utter and complete lack of authoritative support for the defendant's position.

That there may be no doubt as to what it is, he states it unequivocally in his brief that he does not perceive how Article II of the Constitution can be read...

Fifteen persons made the arduous trip across the race course. One of the girl representatives in the tour, others entered the race itself.
