Marriage-Minded Girls Make Mistake in Sticking Together

There is one mistake marriage-minded girls often make. They stick too close together.

Sue would like to find a husband. There's no doubt about that in Sue's mind or in the minds of those who know her well.

But Sue isn't giving herself a break. She is so afraid of being seen alone, she is always with another girl or a group of girls.

If an eligible man having lunch alone sees Sue, he doesn't have a chance to ask if he can sit at her table. For Sue is busy exchanging confidences over lunch with another girl, or several other girls.

If Sue decides to go swimming she telephones another girl to go with her. So if a male acquaintance wanted to drop down beside Sue on the swimming pool's edge, he'd have to brave a feminine twosome, which takes more courage than many a man has.

SET OUT ALONE ON HUSBAND SEARCH

Even the organizations Sue has joined in the hope of meeting men have little benefit. For she wouldn't think of going to a club meeting alone. She always takes another girl along.

When vacation rolls around it's the same thing. Sue looks around for a girl who'll vacation with her.

What Sue doesn't realize is that husband hunting is poor when girls hunt in pairs.

Two women together just aren't as intriguing as a woman alone. Remember that, girls, when you plan your vacation or decide that you'll join a mixed social or hobby group.

Strike out alone and you'll have better luck with your husband hunting.

Bellfountain Sends Homemakers to Meet

BELLFOUNTAIN — Nearly a score of women from Bellfountain attended the Sixth Annual Homemakers Festival recently at Corvallis. The Bellfountain Home Extension Unit demonstrated "How to Iron a Shirt," while Mrs. G. M. Gragg, Mrs. Roe Shelton, Mrs. George Powell, Mrs. Lloyd Miller, Mrs. F. A. Nussbaum, Mrs. J. A. Hensley, Mrs. Noble Turner, Mrs. O. W. Dodson and Mrs. Robert McNeal presented episode IV "Foundation of Faith" in the pageant "Brave Women and Blazed Trails, A Century of Homemaking in Benton County."

The Alpine Unit also participated in this episode, which depicted early-day camp meeting at Bellfountain Park. A circuit rider preacher was featured, as he held services and baptized babies, in this episode.

Mrs. Nussbaum displayed a chair she had renovated at the upholstery workshop.
