

Proposed Fire District Okayed

Bounds Approved At Second Hearing

The Lane County Court Tuesday approved boundaries for the proposed Willakenzie Fire District in a second public hearing. The boundary question, the proposed area generally include a tract about six to eight miles square which lies between the Eugene and McKenzie Rivers. The area will not include any portion of the Rainbow Water District. All of the Oakway Water District, however, is included.

ONE SECTION originally included in proposed boundaries has been omitted. An area of approximately 100 acres in the Dead-end Ferry area, in the northeast corner of the proposed district, was excluded following a request for such action by a resident of the area. There is only one dwelling in this section.

Morton Turnbull, proponent for fire district, said an election will be held within 31 days. The district, if approved, he said, will be patterned after the Bethel fire district.

"We also hope to have a substantial reduction in fire insurance rates," Turnbull said.

A SLATE OF candidates for a district board will also be on the ballot. Board members will determine the type of fire protection needed and will draw up a budget for district operation.

Under the law, the board can levy up to four mills annually for calling for a special election.

Fire Truck, First Aid Car Wash on Way to Blaze

SALEM —(P)—Two men were injured Tuesday in a collision between a fire truck and a first aid car.

Both vehicles were en route to a fire in a private home when they collided. Capt. C. N. Charlton of the first aid crew was severely injured and William Iverson, a man, suffered a head cut and fracture.

Fine Unimpressed With Key Position

By CHARLES WELSH Associated Press Staff Writer

HARRISBURG, Pa. — (P)—Pennsylvania's Gov. John S. Fine, whom many Republican leaders say may be the single most important delegate to the GOP national convention, is uncommitted, undecided and unimpressed by the excitement his stand has created.

He is uncommitted as to how he will vote at Chicago next month. Fine says so, and not even his most intimate friends or political associates profess to know where the governor stands. But Fine is confident that a big majority of Pennsylvania's 70 convention votes will be lined up with him when the presidential candidate is nominated.

HE ALSO is undecided as to when he will make up his mind on that candidate. When he does, he says, it will be "on issues and not on candidates." He believes that the most important question before the nation is the "tremendous expenditures" of the federal government.

Security and peace depend on the solvency of this country," the governor says.

And the husky, balding former judge is unimpressed by all the furor swirling around him. Representatives of every candidate within the party have been knocking on his door, calling him by phone, writing to enlist his support. Fine's vote, as a delegate-at-large, is important; much more so is his influence with other Pennsylvania delegates.

THESE FACTORS in the situation were made apparent in an interview with the Associated Press, in which the Governor discussed his views on the campaign issues. He declined to comment on the record concerning candidates or the delegates' position, and would not disclose any new details of his talk last Sunday with Dwight D. Eisenhower, or previous conversations with Sen. Robert A. Taft and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The Pennsylvania delegation's 70 votes are officially and actually uncommitted and uncommitted, although many members have expressed personal preferences.

The most recent AP poll shows 20 favoring Eisenhower, 18 backing Taft and 32 undecided or unwilling to state a preference. Backers of both candidates claim a bigger share of the delegation. Taft has said he counts 25 votes. There has been no official Eisenhower claim of strength but leaders have contended it is "upwards of 30" votes.

Taxpayers Can't Wait

NORWICH, Conn. —(U.P.)—Here's further proof that taxpayers can never relax. After 72 years, officials finally managed to pay off the mortgage on the city hall. Even as they were doing so they called the building a "shame and disgrace" and laid plans for spending several thousands of dollars to modernize it.
