

Eugene's Early Days Told Mrs. Moore at Meeting

Her earlier business and social women were described by Mrs. Harvold A. Moore at the meeting of the Professional Women's Club Thursday noon at the Hotel. Mrs. Moore co-edited "The Eugene Story" with Mrs. Lynn S. McCrea and Mrs. C. C. McCornack. Mrs. Moore described the early days of Eugene, and the professional photographers whose studio led all others in town for many years. Miss Moore is a member of the "Eugene Story" committee. She told of Mrs. Woodruff, "the first" who later was succeeded by the tall and fashionable "Eugene" woman, Miss Monra, distinguished by her corkscrew curls, was an early hostess in Eugene who entertained guests at the old dinner house. This was at a full-course meals total-

'June Bride' Is Tradition Of Old Rome

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The radiant June bride, leaving the church with the man of her choice, is probably unaware of the part ancient Roman superstition played in her wedding date. June is the most popular month for weddings in North America, largely because the Romans considered it the most propitious season — especially around the time of the June full moon. Rome considered May bad for marriage, but the prejudice against that month has been overcome in Christian countries. In fact, May is considered the ideal marriage period in some European nations. The Christian church helped in the selection of May or June for marriage by frowning on weddings during Lent or other periods of fasting or penitence.

TODAY'S June bride can consider herself lucky that she is being married in the 20th century instead of several hundred years earlier. The worst she has to do is dodge rice and shoes thrown in her direction. In earlier times, particularly among the Anglo-Saxons, the bridegroom was given a shoe by the bride's father to denote a transfer in authority over the lady. By custom the gentleman tapped or struck his wife on the head to demonstrate his mastery. Custom obliged the man to honor his lady, but it left no doubt as to the master of the household. One old law allowed the bridegroom three broomstick blows on the bride's body, while another allows him to beat her with a stick no longer than his arm or thicker than his middle finger. The new wife, tossing her bouquet to waiting bridesmaids, does not know how lucky she is. The bouquet-throwing replaces garter-snatching that sometimes proved damaging.

OLD FRENCH custom granted the next marriage to the lass who made off with the bride's garter. Competition for this good luck token became fierce, and sensible brides who wished to avoid a possible mauling left a garter hanging loose and easily available. Later, by prearrangement, the brides started tossing stockings to bridesmaids. It meant the same thing, but it was difficult to remove a stocking from a wedding costume, and the banquet became a substitute. Gentlemen attendants in today's wedding also are somewhat better off than those of ages past. In the days when wives were captured by hostile tribes or families, the groomsman had the job of warding off indignant relatives. Today the best man has little more to do than to see that the groom gets to the altar with the ring. Newlyweds of today, if funds are available, leave after the ceremony on a honeymoon — a trip on which they can be alone if they wish. In the time when men grabbed their women by force it was sometimes necessary for the happy couple to hide out — until the bride's family stopped looking for her.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Jurgenson are here from Clarkfield, Minn., this week to attend the Commencement at the University of Oregon. Their son, Robert, is a member of the graduating class. Two daughters, Kathryn and Marlene, accompanied the Jurgensons on their motor trip west.

Recipe

TAKE 2 CUPS of canned apple sauce, well chilled, mix in one tablespoon of lemon juice and 2 tablespoons grated orange peel. Serve in your prettiest dessert bowl, topped with thin slices of orange. This yields enough for 4 servings.

HALVE ORANGES, scoop out pulp. Dice pulp and combine with well chilled canned apple sauce, raisins and chopped nuts. Refill shells, top with a marshmallow, and serve as a dream dessert to tickle the fancy of youngsters... or grown-ups, for that matter.

WHEN SERVING French toast, use a hot sauce of creamed mushrooms or shrimps made in a double boiler over the simmer burner of your gas range. Add a few slices of Canadian bacon for decoration and added flavor. It's a nice lunch dish.

SCRUB the hearth tiles with hot water and soapuds, rinse with clean water and wipe dry. Then apply wax to the tiles for added luster.

HONEY EGGNOG ON CEREAL—Beat two eggs well, gradually add 3 tablespoons honey and two cups milk. Blend thoroughly. Sprinkle with a few grains nutmeg and serve immediately. Yield: Enough for 4 to 6 cereal bowls.

FLUFFY HONEY SAUCE—Fold 2 tablespoons of honey into 1/4 cup whipped cream. Used as topping for cake or other desserts. Yield: 1 cup sauce.
