Citizens Views Big Event

LAN WYANT
 Staff Writer
 The 1952 fair was a big success, according to opinions of citizens and exhibitors interviewed here.

any person agreed that the fair was the best they had ever seen. L. W. Ball, who was one of the exhibitors, declared that the fair has been carried out better than ever before.

Walling, who was in charge of the fair, said that the fair was a success because of the cooperation of the citizens and exhibitors.

year marked the first time her grange has operated a food booth at the fair. She agreed with others that the fair exhibits were very fine this year.

LIVESTOCK IMPRESSIVE
 Leland Roy Kidder, 13, of Dexter, was especially impressed by the livestock exhibits this year.

"There's a lot more stock and it's better quality, too," he declared. Leland, a 4-H Club member, exhibited hogs himself and picked up a couple of ribbons. He also made about $30 profit on one of the hogs, sold at the fat stock auction Wednesday night. Friday afternoon he was looking forward to the rodeo.

"That's going to be the best thing of all," he predicted. Gene Terpening, a member of the Sheriff's posse, expressed pleasure over the fair's exhibits and had praise for the well-managed crowds who attended the events. The Sheriff's posse was charged with police ing parking lots and helping direct the crowds.

BUSY WITH RECALL
 Dick Eymann was able to speak for a lot of people when he reported there's been plenty of favorable comment on this year's fair and especially on the big, new auditorium building. Eymann spent most of his time talking to fairgoers, trying to get them to sign "Recall Judge Bayly" petitions. He said most people thought highly of the fair. But he was amazed, he declared, to find that a lot of people "have never even heard of Judge Bayly."

Harriet DeCandido, who operates one of the Browning Bros. carnival concessions, had praise for the fair too.
NO COMMENT
 "Lane County's is always the top I'm concerned," she declared, "and fair in the whole state as far as it's better than ever this year."

John Wheeler, Rt. 2, Creswell, was just about the only person who didn't have something nice to say about the fair. He refused to comment on anything but consented to pose for the photographer. He's 8 months old, so this was his first fair.

Patricia Jacobson, 9, of Lorane Rt., looked over the whole fair and decided she liked the rides in the carnival best. She was getting up enough courage to go on the Octopus, a spine-tingling mechanical ride, Friday afternoon.
 M. E. Marquart, of Creswell, hadn't been to a county fair for several years until he attended this one.

"It's improved a lot," he said. "The displays are better and the whole thing is much nicer." Marquart was interviewed in the new auditorium bldg, which housed the floral and sewing displays. He was favorably impressed by the size of the building.

Eugene Police Reserve Ready for Disaster Work

By PETER TUGMAN
 Register-Guard Staff Writer
 If the big bomb drops here or if the Willamette River ever goes on a rampage, there's one group of local citizens who won't be looking for a ditch to crawl into or a houseboat to float down the river.

They're the Eugene Police Reserve and they stand ready when an emergency arises to spring into action, performing disaster services which in some cases are countywide.

They're a devoted band of around 100, most of whom show up faithfully for monthly instruction sessions at the city jail. Their attendance record is much better than other similar volunteer agencies and Chief Ted Brown knows this. "It's just a wonder the way they've stuck to their jobs on this thing," he says.

A recent meeting of the reserves may furnish a clue to the esprit de corps or whatever it is that holds the outfit together.

About 50 or 60 recently gathered in the big squad room upstairs in the jail. On tap were two educational movies on civil defense; a talk by Chief Brown, an organizational meeting and of course coffee and refreshments.

One movie showed the excellent preparations the city of Syracuse had made for an atomic emergency, the other showed methods used by the secret service, and something of their plans and training. Brown's talk and the questions that followed were in the spirit of "when it comes"; much in the same vein that a coach might outline strategy for a football game that is scheduled for Saturday afternoon. And maybe that is why these men attend so faithfully—to learn a job they feel will have to be performed someday.

The reserve, which is made up of men and women from all walks of life, is divided up into 5 divisions. The first, headed by Ralph Newman, local fish dealer, is the patrol division. It will take the field to supplement the regular police force in case of emergency, preventing looting, keeping order, directing traffic and the like.

The second, directed by Vance Clark, is the communications division. This is made of the entire membership of the Valley Radio Club, or "hams" as they are popularly known. They can operate, in an emergency some 15 to 20 radio equipped cars, a gasoline generator to supplement the regular electrically operated generator and will furnish communications for the sheriff's office on a county-wide basis. These men are all communication technicians.

The third is the motorcycle reserve. It is commanded by Clarence Saville and is made up of the memberships of the East Side Cycle Club and the West Side Cycle Club. These men will act as dispatch riders, going quickly where it is impassable for cars.

The fourth section is made up of Explorer Scouts, the older, elite group of scouting, who have passed the toughest tests of the program. These boys, who are all over 16 years old are under the leadership of Scout Donald Dudley. They will act as a shock messenger service.

The fifth group is composed of about 12 women under the leadership of Mrs. Helen Britton. This small corps will take charge of typing, bookkeeping and clerical work, possibly setting up a morgue or notifying the next of kin. It is composed of business and professional women from the Eugene area.

And that is your Police Reserve, the first line of civilian defense against looting and panic if disaster strikes.

Wedding Set For Alpine

ALPINE — Mr. and Mrs. Tom McLaughry are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Marilee, to Mr. Harold Laux of Corvallis. The wedding is to be Oct. 11. Miss McLaughry grew up in this community, attended Alpine Grade School and Monroe High School. She has been employed in Corvallis during the past few months. Laux's home is in Corvallis and the young folks plan to live there.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Larkin recently sold their farm, located in the Glenbrook neighborhood, to a family from California. Mr. and Mrs. Larkin moved Monday to Oregon City, where they have a married daughter.

Word has been received that Mr. and Mrs. John Cavanaugh of Cottage Grove are the parents of twin boys. The babies weighed 8 and 8 1/2 pounds and were born Sept. 14.

Mrs. Cavanaugh was raised in this area. Miss Madeline Nichols, Mrs. Faye Hewitt, Mrs. J. D. Whitus, Mrs. Mae Christiane and Mrs. L. C. Davidson attended a birthday club held at the Irvin Richard home near Bellfountain.

Mrs. Amelia Christensen of Corvallis will entertain the club at her home Sept. 23. Mrs. Foster Belknap is a new member recently voted into the club to fill the place of the late Mrs. Wayne Starr.

Miss Marjorie Johnston, who is attending business college in Eugene, spent the past weekend visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnston.

Mrs. D. J. Whiteis and Mrs. Eugene L. Davidson attended home extension project leaders' training in Corvallis Monday and Tuesday. They will give the lesson on textile painting at the Oct. 15 meeting.

Siuslaw Oar Gains Building

FLORENCE—The long cherished dream of a new office for the "Siuslaw Oar" is in the process of materialization. A new, one story frame building with stucco exterior and cement flooring is being erected behind the present building. Truitt Woodworth is the contractor.

The building will be L shape and contain double the floor space of the present building. The two senior Morgan brothers made a trip to southern Oregon last week-end where they purchased a newspaper press which will speed up the press runs and double the capacity of the cylinder press.

which has been used an indeterminate number of years in the shop.

Mrs. Kenneth McCornack left by plane Thursday enroute to Denver, Colo., where she will be Grand Representative of Oregon Grand Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star, Sept. 18, 19 and 20. From Denver, Mrs. McCornack will go to Estes Park, Colo., to visit her niece, Mrs. Roland Jahnke (Agnes McCornack) formerly of Florence, and then on to Baton Rouge, La., where she will join her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John McCornack and young daughter.
