Webfoots Fool 'Experts' in Surprise Showing Against Powerful Bruins

By DICK STRITE
Register-Guard Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES—Pin this in Oregon won't be playing any football game for a long time. It is rated anything in the West of a three to five-touchdown favorite. The Webfoots of a three to five-touchdown favorite, lost 13-6 to the Bruins here Saturday afternoon—a moral victory there was such a thing.

The Bruins' newly-clad white-and-green gridiron uniforms, stunned the Pacific Coast champions, with a touchdown early in the second quarter, just wouldn't give up attempting to score what would have been the most stunning reversal in recent years. George Shaw scored on a 38-yard pass after the Bruins had held the Bruin one-foot line in the first quarter.

More than four minutes of the third quarter remained when the Bruins' "dead ball" kicks stopped on the Bruins' one-foot line and put the Webfoots back on their feet.

Fourth attempt, the ball barely rolled into the end zone.

TEMPERATURE 112
While the fans sweltered, the players were virtually roasted alive and the effect of the 112 temperature on the Coliseum floor and the extreme humidity caused the Webfoots to wilt—but not quit.

OREGON'S FIRST TALLY

Oregon came close to winning its first game for the Bruins since the 1948 Cotton Bowl team won 26-7. (Jim Aiken was in the stands close by the press box.) The touchdown tallied by Shaw was the first score for Oregon over UCLA in three seasons. Two years ago it was 28-0 and last year 41-0.

Despite the defeat, the showing of the Oregons was more than even the most ardent Webfoot fans could ask for—a team that was a 22-point underdog, odds that many believed would be about 35-7.

The squad came through without injury. Other than the usual bumps and bruises of a PCC contest. They will return home Sunday, arriving at Mahlon Sweet airport on a United DC-6 at about noon.

Oregon made a humble start after the Bruins failed to gain yardage following Oregon's kick-off. Narleski's bounding punt, not of the dead-ball variety, bounced away from Shaw and Moomaw recovered for the Bruins on the Oregon 10. Emmett Williams was greatly responsible for holding three running plays to a net two yards and then Merritt Barber knocked down Narleski's attempted touchdown pass into the end zone.

It was soon afterward that Narleski's first dead punt stuck on the Oregon 20—but Novikoff reeled off a great punt that carried 64 1/2 yards to the UCLA 26. Barnes and Don Hedgepeth stopped one Bruin running play to a nine-yard loss and a pass to nothing and Merritt Barber returned Narleski's punt four yards to the UCLA 32.

SCORE NULLIFIED
Ted Anderson made four and then took a Dunham pass over his head and over defender Joe Sabol and slid over the goal line—but a yard short of a touchdown. It was a good for 27 yards. Novikoff then

CLIMBER

Forest Evashevski played a dirty trick on Al Kircher, when the former Michigan star quit to Iowa and remarked, "I am leaving a Pacific conference championship team."

It certainly isn't as important as the 35-7 defeat at USC here Friday night would indicate. But in this case the Rose Bowl bubble went bust. For a team that points a game last year when nearly half of the touchdowns in the air, the WSC quarterbacking was extremely poor. The Cougars attempted only one pass in the entire game.

The Cougar touchdown twins of quarterback Bob Burkhardt and end Ed Barker, senior from Sunnyvale, 11.3 yards a game. Burkhardt averaged 14.5 passes, 11.3 yards and 1.5 touchdowns a game last year. Friday night 12 passes, 6 completed for 38 yards and nothing more. Barker, who set a national record for pass-receiving yards with an average of 4.6 receptions for 86.4 yards last year, set 3 for 22 yards against the Trojans. USC did a superb job in covering potential receivers.

It was after the exchange that Dailey returned Novikoff's punt nine yards to the Oregon 31. Narleski passed to Dailey for nine and to Stalwick for four to the 17. Narleski failed and then passed to Stockert for nine—setting up Narleski's second and winning touchdown.

Barnes left the game at that point, and was given a thunderous ovation.

NO IT'S NOT A CONGA LINE—It's just Eugene halfback Jerry Wicks eluding the desperate grasp of two Springfield defenders in Friday night's 41-7 Axemen victory. The two white-shirted Springfield defenders trying vainly to catch Wicks are Gerald Chase (6) and Ted McCarthy (54). Others identified in the picture are Eugene tackle Bob McHenry (36) and Axemen end Don Ainge (40). Wicks ran for nine yards on the play to help set up his team's second touchdown.

Williams and defensive halfback end and Brethauer played fine ball, too," Sanders said in the dressing room.

The only Oregon injuries were three stitches in Anderson's lip and a bruised leg for Barnes. Sabol of the Bruins will be out for three weeks with two bad knees. Sanders picked out Moomaw and Narleski as the best of the Bruins.

Beavers Win 14-7 From Utah Eleven

SALT LAKE CITY—Alternately suave and sloppy, touted Oregon State Saturday night settled for a 14-7 football victory over underdog Utah in their season opener before 15,000 fans in the Ute Stadium.

Sam Baker, said to be one of the best fullbacks on the Pacific Coast this year, kept Oregon State in the game—but with oodles of help from the pitching arm of quarterback Jim Withrow and halfbacks Ken Brown and Jack Pinion.

Twenty pounds per man heavier than the 1951 Skyline champions, the Beavers crunched their way to the two key goals—within seven minutes after the opening gun.

TOUGH GOING
Then the visitors found it tough going to keep pace with the razzle-dazzle Utes and were forced to confine their game to the ground for the remaining three quarters.

The underdog Redskins provided the only crowd-thriller. Quarterback Don Rydahl tossed a nifty 20-yard spiral to halfback Jack Cross on the Oregon State 30 from where the speedy halfback showed his heels to half a dozen lumbering Beavers to cross the goal line standing up. Guard Charles Kalani made Utah's only conversion when the score came midway in the second quarter.

Halfback Frank Branham, speedy Utah mainstay, provided the second thrill. Earl in the closing quarter, he took the ball on a handout and galloped 35 yards for the longest run of the night. But the Beavers held and took the ball to play a freeze-out for the remainder of the game.

BAKER BLASTS
In the first quarter, Baker and Pinion capitalized on Withrow's solid arm. Withrow set up the first touchdown on a 36-yard pass to end Jack Gotta on the Ute 18. Three plays later Baker went over from the 12 and end Jim Cordial made his first of two conversions.

Minutes later, Withrow set the scene for the second score with a 16-yard pass to the Utah 26. Baker tallied again from the two after he and halfback Bill West had alternated of tackle in advancing downfield.

Two costly fumbles verified Oregon State's opening game jitters, but Utah was equally nervous as evidenced in frequent delayed decisions and faulty tackling.

The punting of quarterback Carter Cowley of Utah kept the Beavers back on their heels. Twice his boots gave Utah momentary edge in the Oregon State coffin corner, but the lighter Utes were unable to push their way across.

Yankees, Brooklyn Bolster Flag Hopes

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers took giant steps toward a World Series date Saturday by bolstering their league leads with important shutout victories.

Eddie Lopat blanked the Philadelphia A's with four hits for a 2-0 decision over Alex Kellner as the Yanks scored twice in the eighth on doubles by Phil Rizzuto and Yogi Berra, a single by Hank Bauer and an error by Dave Philley.

Sore-armed Carl Erskine and Jackie Robinson teamed up on the Boston Braves to eke out a 10th inning win for Brooklyn, 1-0, that left the second-place New York Giants in a near-hopeless position.

The Yankees clung to their 1 1/2 game American League lead over Cleveland Saturday but Brooklyn practically ended any chance of another New York Giant "miracle" by opening up a five-game lead in the National with only seven to play.

Cleveland crushed Detroit in a night game, 11-3, with Al Rosen and Luke Easter hitting home runs to stay on the Yanks' heels.

Saturday night the Philadelphia Phils' Robin Roberts sent the Giants reeling into a near-hopeless position by beating rookie Al Corvin, 3-2, for his 26th win.

The "magic number" required to clinch the pennant for the Dodgers now has been reduced to three. Any combination of three Brooklyn wins or Giant defeats will send Chuck Dressen's Brooks into the World Series.

The Yanks still are in a tough wrestle with the Indians. They have seven to go and Cleveland only six. The "magic number" for Casey Stengel's fourth straight flag now is any combination of six.

Cleveland trailed Detroit in the early stages but caught fire on the homers by Rosen and Easter.

The only positive action of the daytime baseball was the elimination of the St. Louis Cardinals from the pennant race. By losing to Chicago, 4-1, the Cards fell eight games behind the Brooks with only seven to play. They still have an outside chance to nip the Giants for second money.

Warren Hacker, a red hot pitcher down the stretch, held the Cards to three hits to win his 14th at the expense of Gerry Staley's 14th defeat.

Stan Musial went hitless in four trips while Frankie Baumholtz, the contender from Chicago, had one hit in four times at bat to narrow Musial's batting lead. Musial is hitting .3333, Baumholtz .3316.
