Silver Displays Make Festive Yule Decorations

Every year, just about this time, your pyramid will be simple to handle.

Of course, beautiful fruit arrangements are traditional at Christmas time and are never quite so lovely as when they are combined with silver. If you have a small family, however, you may find that large fruit arrangements go to waste in the heat of the living room before the fruit is eaten. If so, why not use your silver gravy boat and tray? The graceful curve of the boat lends itself especially well to grape arrangements, for example. A bunch of grapes plus a bit of holly can make a very decorative arrangement. For added gaiety, tie a bow of Christmas ribbon on the handle of the gravy boat, and drop a leaf or two of holly into the tray.

Why not put your silver hollowware to work? Certainly nothing is more fitting for Christmas than its bright beauty, and if you follow some of the Council's simple suggestions you'll find new pleasure in decking the halls with boughs of holly this year.

If you have silver bowls or compotes, fill them with pyramids of brightly colored Christmas tree balls and arrange small holly bows around the base of the bowl or compote so that the holly is reflected in the silver. Do them in pairs or singly, depending upon the silver you have.

If you have difficulty in making the colored balls stay securely in the bowls or compotes, touch each one with a little rubber cement as you stack them, and as soon as the cement sets
