The Sixth Week in Lent

(From The Christian Century)

The raising of Lazarus from the dead raises a question in the modern man's mind. Did Jesus really raise the dead? It seems pretty clear that the men who wrote the Gospels thought he did. They lived in an entirely different climate from ours. They had been brought up on the story of Elisha and they remembered how he brought the son of the Shunamite woman back to life. Now recently Peter had raised the girl from the dead, and the story of his action circulated freely and without question.

We live in a different world. We know that things beyond our comprehension happen, and we do not pretend to possess as great a degree of omniscience as our immediate predecessors did. Nevertheless, we have a high regard for the regularity and orderliness by which God operates the universe and it is not easy for us to imagine that God would arbitrarily set aside all his laws to bring the dead to life, not even to demonstrate his power or to show forth his glory.

We would be wise, however, to reserve our judgment on such matters. These are not the realms in which to be dogmatic. These are matters beyond our immediate experience about which we have no factual evidence. We would do well to concentrate our attention on the thing we do know, namely, that Jesus does raise people from the dead now!

He finds them lifeless and he brings them back into usefulness. Their lives are drab and dull, empty as shells from which the living thing has long since departed. He fills them with life that is rich and vivid. We know this because we have seen it happen.

Palm Branch, Olive Branch, And Blossom

A Flower Communion will be celebrated Sunday at the Unitarian Church is a service of Re-dedication to Freedom, traditional among Unitarians on the Sunday preceding the birthday of Thomas Jefferson. Since Palm Sunday and the Jefferson Memorial fall on the same day this year, the service will incorporate the significance of both occasions, said the minister, the Rev. Edward L. Ericson.

The Flower Communion, a fairly new feature of the Re-dedication to Freedom, had its origin in the Unitarian Church of Prague, Czechoslovakia. Ironically, the founder of the Communion, a Czech minister who designed it to symbolize human brotherhood, died in a Nazi Concentration Camp in World War II.

"Palm Branch and Olive Branch" will be the title of Mr. Ericson's Sermon.

Springfield Churches Ready For Palm Sunday, Holy Week

By VERA HANSEN

Union Sunrise services are planned by the Ministerial Association for 6 a.m. Easter Sunday at Silke Field. In case of steady rain the service will be moved into the Memorial Building. These plans were completed at Thursday's meeting of the group. The Rev. Paul Felthous, the Rev. Alfred Stenner, and the Rev. Max Fisk were named to the nominating committee and charged to report at the May meeting scheduled to be held at Weyerhaeuser plant. The groups recreation committee was given the task of organizing a softball league in cooperation with Willamette officials.

The ministers arranged for the Good Friday union service, 12 noon to 3 p.m., at Ebbert Memorial Methodist Church.

The Rev. Herbert Sackett and Mrs. Sackett have returned from Port Angeles, Washington with the news that they have accepted a ministry there and will move July first. After serving in Springfield for ten years they will be missed by the community. Only recently have they completed a home on 1753 No. 16th St.
