of hands throughout the audience. "It takes courage to stand up for Jesus," he said. Rosell then asked those who had raised their hands to come forward and receive some printed verses from the Bible. As they came forward, he again called on others "to accept Jesus in your heart" and join the others. When those who were going to came forward, Rosell then asked them to go into an adjacent room for a short session of prayer "to reaffirm and strengthen their decision to follow Jesus Christ." Earlier in the evening, Rosell announced that his Tuesday evening sermon topic will be "The Man Washington Ought to Investigate."

One of the main issues of the hour, the evangelist declared, is the possibility of the loss of freedom of speech or the loss of the right to criticize. "The fate of America rests on these rights," he said. "In these modern days, if the church withdraws into an ivory tower, we might as well forget about helping the generation of our time. It is time for the great churches to speak," Rosell declared. "This crusade is not just a pretty little church crusade," Rosell emphasized, "but a nation-wide movement for Christ. We feel we can change our generation for Christ and do it carefully and without bloodshed."

McCarthy to Quiz Hearing Witnesses

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) said Tuesday he would not object to discarding some accusations against Sen. McCarthy so long as the Senate gets a chance to vote on whether the Wisconsin Republican has shown "disregard for the whole orderly conduct of government."

A six-member Senate committee decided Monday to give McCarthy the right to cross-examine witnesses in public hearings to begin Aug. 30 on accusations that his conduct has tended to bring the Senate into disrepute and merits formal censure.

Members said the special group, headed by Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), is aiming at a 10-day hearing and a mid-September report. The Senate might reconvene Oct. 1 to act on such a report.

Watkins said the group, composed of three Republicans and three Democrats, hopes to conduct its hearings much as a court trial, with evidence limited to that which the committee holds is relevant and most hearsay testimony barred.

"The testimony will have to be relevant," Watkins said. "It will have to be given by competent witnesses. We intend to conduct the hearings as a judicial inquiry."

Fulbright, who filed 6 of the 46 overlapping charges against McCarthy, said in an interview he doesn't want to "bog the committee down" in lengthy hearings.

The accusations, made by Fulbright and Senators Flanders (R-Vt) and Morse (Ind-Ore) during Senate debate on Flanders' move to censure McCarthy, cover a wide range of conduct allegedly unbecoming in a senator. They include a number dealing with the Wisconsin senator's controversial Red-hunting methods.

Fulbright said he would be satisfied if some of them were consolidated, and he added:

I think the issue is whether McCarthy has shown irresponsibility and heedlessness of established custom in his conduct. The committee should concentrate on taking evidence of his disregard for the whole orderly conduct of government and the Senate should vote on that issue."

Whether the special committee would delve into the Lustron case or any other specific charge appeared to depend on the recommendations of a corps of three lawyer researchers.

Committee members said the lawyers, to be named by Watkins with daily pay at the rate of $11,800 a year, will be asked to sift the charges to find which were substantial and grounds for censure if proved.

Hydrant Burns

LANCASTER, Ohio. (AP)—A fire hydrant caught on fire Monday. Firemen said a passing pedestrian striking a match on the hydrant ignited natural gas fumes which had seeped into it. After putting out the fire, firemen placed a "no smoking" sign on the water pipe.
