AIRS HER ARIAS—Singer Miriam Scott, 25, sits on her apartment house fire escape in suburban New York City where her right to practice her songs was challenged in court by a neighbor, Mrs. Katherine Gibson, who charged Miss Scott with disturbance of the peace. Mrs. Gibson works nights as a waitress and complained that the singing interrupted her daytime sleeping. Magistrate Paul Balsam, after hearing testimony from other neighbors who praised Miss Scott's voice, dismissed the complaint.

Higher Salaries Proposed For Beginning Teachers

PORTLAND AP—Higher beginning salaries for Oregon teachers have been recommended by the economic welfare committee of the Oregon Education Assn. The committee also recommended that a school board be required to put in writing its reasons for not rehiring a teacher or administrator. The recommendations, if approved by the OEA's representative council in December, would become official policy of the organization and would be presented to the Oregon legislature next spring for possible action. The committee asked that minimum salaries for teachers with less than three years experience annually. Salaries would be raised to $2,100 to $3,700 for teachers with no degree and at least two years experience or with a degree but no teaching background, and from $2,400 to $4,000 for teachers with degrees and at least two years of teaching.

Budget Boost Asked

SALEM AP—The State Board of Education wants to increase its spending for vocational education by 14.7 per cent in the next two years. The budget for this purpose would total $1,038,729 for the two-year period.

However, it first must be approved by the Budget Department and the Legislature.

The board said it needs more money because the federal government demands employment of more supervisors, and because the government is reducing its share of the costs.

Firm to Close

PORTLAND AP—Stockholders of Doernbecher Furniture Co. of Portland, one of the world's largest manufacturers of furniture, have voted to dissolve the company, it was announced Tuesday.

E. S. Beach, secretary-treasurer of the company, said owners of 79 per cent of the outstanding stock voted unanimously at a special meeting to liquidate the company and all its holdings. He said the dissolution probably would be completed in four months.

Job Vacancies

SALEM AP—The audits division of the secretary of state's office has immediate vacancies for revenue auditors, the State Civil Service Department said Monday.

The positions are headquartered in Portland, but about half the working time is outside of Portland and in some cases out of state. Qualifications are five

Abduction Checked

PORTLAND AP—Police Monday continued their investigation of the kidnap claims of a 19-year-old Portland housewife, who said she was abducted by two women Saturday night. Shirley M. Barker told police that a woman came up behind her on a downtown Portland street corner and said, "This isn't a hat pin in your back. Keep walking."

Mrs. Barker said she was forced into the back seat of a car driven by a second woman, but when the vehicle stopped for a traffic light, Mrs. Barker jumped from the car and ran and hid in the bus depot.

Body Discovered

ASTORIA AP—A badly decomposed body was recovered Sunday from the surf a half-mile north of Klipsan beach on the Oregon coast by a surf fisherman.

Authorities here said the body was believed to be that of Willard Tompkins of Newport who, with his brother, Harold, was drowned last March when the Troller Flora went down in the Columbia River off Hommand, Ore. The other body was recovered in May.
