about this time of year the teams are in practice in the schools and colleges everywhere. The big season . . . and if you love the grunts and thuds of the football field, you'll hear the marching band is getting ready for the season, too. The school band, especially the football season, has become a real part of school life of the most popular music-making anywhere. Thousands of students don't share the glory of the football field have won that of participation through the marching band. It has become one of the most important training grounds for students, and it has been even more important for students who play up music as a hobby. The school marching bands play a few old and too military marches while they march across the field in uniforms. You'll find the school band well dressed, for precision marching in the patterns, and able to play a full range of musical instruments through a wide repertoire of popular tunes and

Don't have to tell you not look the modern marching band. You'll be hearing it, and many a proud parent going to the football game just to hear that band.
