Marilyn's Legs Draw Razz From Ex-Pinup Mistinguett

LONDON (A)—Those things that Marilyn Monroe stands on aren't legs, they're camera angles. Mistinguett said so. Mistinguett was known as the "girl with the million dollar legs" a generation before Marilyn was born. The darling of the Paris boulevards, now a neat and coquettish old lady of "about 80" was the pioneer who made legs respectable on stage and paved the way for the modern pinup girl. So with the authority of an older statesman she grumbled: "This woman Monroe. Never does she show her legs frankly to the camera. Always one knee is pushing into the other, or she is standing with her legs apart and the toes pointed out or her dress is cleverly placed around the legs. "Now in my day," said Mistinguett, who retired only recently and wouldn't need much encouragement to return to the stage, "I did not need such artificial posing. I had the finest legs in the world from any angle. Ah, if you could have seen." Mistinguett created the famous "Apache Dance" and helped devise the first of the big girlie shows for which Paris is famous. She discovered Maurice Chevalier whom she frankly calls the one great love of her life. She says the song "My Man" was written so she could sing it to him. There will be a few blushes when her memoirs are more widely circulated. She lists all her stage partners with the insinuation that they were all her off-stage sweethearts. "We got more realism that way," she explained. Mistinguett, whose legs are still passable, has this advice for Marilyn and any other pinup girl. "Take your shoes off every chance you get. It keeps the ankles slim."

Hanoi Shops Reopen Doors
HANOI, Indochina (A)—Hanoi has returned to near normal after the excitement of an historic weekend in which the city changed from mixed French-Vietnamese control to that of the Communist-led Vietminh. Merchants, workers and every-day citizens have obeyed Vietminh leader Ho Chi Minh's suggestion that life go on as usual. Shops reopened, offices are functioning and the "cyclopousses" — three-wheeled taxis propelled by coolies' strong legs — reappeared on the streets Monday after a three-day absence. Hotel service, which also came to a 72-hour standstill, has been resumed. The takeover of the city from the French was accomplished with hardly an incident, despite the thousands of troops involved who only a few months ago were at each others' throats.
