Rains Control Log Supplies

Rain halted dirt-road loggers early last week, but clear weather allowed most of them back in the woods later. Prices were firm, with isolated increases in the Willamette Valley, according to the Oregon State College weekly farm forest products report.

Log supplies will be pretty much at the mercy of the weather from now until spring. Winter shows road roads can operate through the wet season, but most small mills depend on dirt shows for their log supply.

SAWLOGS: No. 2 second-growth Douglas fir sawlogs at Willamette Valley mills ranged from $36 to $45 a thousand, mostly $40 to $44. Select No. 2's sold up to $53. No. 1's were $38 to $39. Long-camp-run logs were $35 to $45 a thousand. Benton and Linn County mills paid between the lower half of this range, other areas were mostly in the upper half. Logs less than 24 feet long were $2 to $4 lower. Eight-foot logs were $15 to $17 a cord, or $30 to $34 a thousand. No. 2 old-growth sawlogs were $38 to $43 a thousand, truck scale. No. 3's were $25 to $38. Prices on water scale were $2 to $3 higher. Pealers were mostly $72, $85, and $100 in the northern Willamette Valley. Lane County prices were about $10 less.

In Douglas County, long-camp-run logs ranged from $35 to $45 a thousand, mostly $40 to $44. Short logs were $1 to $2 less. No. 2 second-growth was $35 to $45. Select peels sold up to $50. No. 2 old-growth eight-foot logs were $38 to $43 a cord. Sixteen-foot cordwood was $15 less. Pealers were mostly $65, $75, and $90 a thousand, with some mills $10 more on all grades.

At Coos Bay, No. 2 "third-growth" logs were $32 to $35 a thousand. No. 3's were $28 to $30. Long-camp-run logs were $30 to $37, mostly $34. No. 1 old-growth sawlogs were $43 to $45 a thousand. No. 2's were $38 to $40, and No. 3's were $26 to $30. Pealers were $60, $70, and $80 to $85 a thousand. Outlying areas paid $2 to $4 below base prices.

PULPWOOD: Hemlock, true firs and Douglas fir were $17 a cord at Oregon City. The same species were $2 less at St. Helens. Hemlock, spruce and white fir were $15 a cord, or $30.50 a thousand, at Coos Bay.

OTHER FOREST PRODUCTS were unchanged.
