"b. April 26, 1564"

By ANN CONNELL

EUGENE SHAKESPEARE Club celebrated the 391st birthday of the Bard of Avon at its April meeting, which was Monday in the home of Mrs. Carl Washburne, and we were privileged to be a guest. "Meat" of the program was a series of scenes from "Macbeth," play presently studied, each member choosing her preferred scene. Sometimes several women combined efforts, presenting a variety of characters. Many of the readers disclosed marked dramatic talent, as might be expected from a group which has given close study to the dramatic works over a considerable period of years.

As members arrived on the rainy afternoon, they were greeted by a large sunny mass of acacia in a hallway. The color was repeated in mantel bouquets of forsythia; and again in the table centerpiece of yellow primrose, flat in a shallow tray with three fat yellow candles, and flanked by Venetian glass statuary figures in yellow-gray.

Sympathy was extended to a member, Miss Celeste Campbell, who appeared with her right arm in a cast, due to a broken wrist. Luckily, she is ambidextrous. Other members, Mrs. Henry Tromp and Mrs. O. F. Stafford, were missed because of illness. Mrs. Tromp's prepared speech of welcome, made up of appropriate quotations from Shakespeare's works, was read.

A DRIVE ALONG the McKenzie Highway at this season is a delight to the trillium lover, and a sidetrip into the woods will show these fast-becoming-rare flowers blooming in groups. We make it a rule never to pick them, unless it is one flower from a group of three or more; seldom then, because the bulb dies when the flower is pulled. Someday we hope to have time and opportunity to dig one of the deep-placed bulbs to naturalize in our own garden, against the day when we may not be able to go afield to see them. . . .

SPEAKING OF FLOWERS, the bulbs in the garden of the Walker Clinic were a pageant of color at Easter, and still are flowering, although the rain has battered them. There are scarlet tulips, a flaming background for white, rose and blue hyacinths; in other beds, daffodils and paler narcissus blooms, some grape hyacinth. Forget-me-nots are opening blue eyes in promise, too.

WHEN SUZAN FAY COLDIRON was born March 21 to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Coldiron of Springfield, she became another link in a long chain of statistics coupled by the magic date, 21. In addition to the fact that she was the 21st grandchild (on her mother's side) of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Parker of Goshen, Ind., the family notes these significant dates: Oct. 21, 1888, birth of great grandfather, Daniel M. Parker; Jan. 21, 1893, death of Daniel M. Parker; Nov. 21, 1911, birth of Suzan's father; Dec. 21, 1919, birth of Suzan's mother; Aug. 21, 1938, marriage of Suzan's parents; June 21, 1939, birth of Suzan's brother, George Aaron. Two uncles of the baby were married April 21 and May 21, 1939, and a cousin, Bonna Jean Parker, was born April 21, 1942.

MR. AND MRS. Mortimer A. Heinrich of Honolulu announce the birth of their third son and fourth child, John Thomas, on Friday, April 8. They are University of Oregon graduates and former residents of Eugene where Mrs. Heinrich grew up as Elizabeth (Betty) Onthank. Summer before last they visited extensively with her parents and friends in Eugene when Mr. Heinrich was on a three months' leave from the Bank of Hawaii.

HONOR HAS COME to a Lubbock, Texas, woman artist, who is known to many locally through her visits in this area. She is Mrs. Chester A. (Bess) Hubbard, a cousin of Mrs. C. D. (Hal) Jeske. Her sculpture, "La Reboza," the head of a Taos Indian woman done in limestone, has been chosen as one of 30 pieces of sculpture to be exhibited this month by the Women's International Art Club of England.

Mrs. Hubbard works in media of oil and lithographing, as well as sculpture, and has had exhibits in many galleries.
