Hatfield Says He'd Prefer Second Term

But May Decide To Oppose Morse

SEATTLE (AP) — Oregon Gov. Mark O. Hatfield said Friday his present intention is to seek reelection but he left the door open for a possible U.S. Senate candidacy in 1962.

Hatfield, elected in 1958, said he has two choices in 1962 — to run for governor again or seek the Senate seat of Wayne Morse, Democrat.

"At the present time," Hatfield said, "I would prefer the governor's position, but things may change by 1962. I've been governor less than two years and there are still many programs in Oregon I would like to see accomplished."

NIXON VICTORY SEEN
Hatfield forecast election of Vice President Nixon as the next president. The Oregon governor considered he does not expect to be considered seriously for the vice presidential nomination because both he and Nixon are from the West.

Hatfield predicted the G.O.P. vice-presidential candidate will be selected from the Midwest. He said Rep. Charles Halleck (R-Ind.) "certainly is a major contender."

Hatfield condemned violence in Portland's newspaper strike and said the recent bombing of newspaper delivery trucks hurt the position of bargaining agents.

"Violence in Portland labor disputes is an isolated affair, and not indicative of general labor violence moving westward," Hatfield said.

'NOTHING NEW'
Hatfield said that Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, "offered nothing new" when the senator offered earlier this week to look into the Portland newspaper strike.

"I don't mind a Republican or a Democrat offering suggestions, because this situation is beyond politics," Hatfield said. "We welcome suggestions from any source."

Hatfield pointed out at a news conference here that his own office had offered every possible service in an attempt to settle the strike.

Rockefeller Aide Dies

GREAT NECK, N. Y. (UPI) — Richard Amper, 44, press secretary to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, and a veteran newspaperman, died at his home of a heart attack Friday.

He had complained of feeling ill only five minutes before he died of what his physician, Dr. N. Luger, said was a coronary occlusion.

In Albany, Rockefeller said his death was "a severe blow to me and to the state."

"Dick Amper was a brilliant newspaperman, a knowledgeable aide, a devoted public servant and a witty and warm-hearted friend," Rockefeller said.

Amper left his job as a political reporter for the New York Times to join Rockefeller's staff several months before his successful 1958 campaign for governor.

French Novelist Has Divorce Hearing

PARIS (AP) — Novelist Francoise Sagan and her estranged husband Friday went through the reconciliation hearing required by French divorce law and declined to reconcile. A court announcement said the divorce action would proceed. Both Miss Sagan and her husband, Guy Schoeller, have filed suit, but in France the grounds on which divorce is sought are not made public.

Mine Toll Revised

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Eighteen miners believed trapped in the coal mine cave-in at Coalbrook have been reported alive at home, reducing the death toll to 417. The South African Broadcasting Corp. said officials in Basutoland, a British-protected enclave within South Africa, traced the men and found them safe.

Kennedy Travels by Air; Won't Eat Banquet Food

By DAN SELLARD
Of the Register-Guard

Traveling through Oregon with Sen. John Kennedy was a new experience. Other contacts with the major candidates for the presidency have been by covering speeches and conducting interviews.

Sellard

Kennedy travels in a converted Conair, a two-engine plane which his family gave him for the campaign. When the airplane was in commercial use it seated 44 passengers.

The craft now carries only 11 persons, plus a crew of pilot, co-pilot and a pretty girl who is both the stewardess and Kennedy's secretary. It has a sleeping compartment in the aft section, and cushy seats in the main section. A desk and a typewriter occupy considerable space.

Kennedy was older-looking than I thought he'd be. He is 42 and from a distance looks much younger. He does have a boyish grin and on a platform looks youthful.

But, up close, I thought he looked at least his age. When the face is at rest, it shows some wrinkles and the eyes look tired. Other reporters who have traveled with him more than I say he has an "on and off" expression—he can look animated and young when he wants to, but in an off-guard minute, he doesn't.

When Kennedy gets on the plane, he sits alone in a large chair to the rear of the wing. He sometimes sleeps in a bed farther aft. Wednesday, he got on the plane early and slept the half hour it took to fly from Corvallis to Newport. His staff says napping is a favorite habit of his.

The candidate has another good campaign technique — he doesn't eat the meals served in his honor. Campaigning for the presidency is a tough job and a man just can't eat "local food" when his stomach is tied up in knots. Many other campaigners do the same thing. The trick is to try to eat the food and make a great play of using a napkin to wipe your mouth of the food you don't eat. Gov. Mark Hatfield has the technique down to a fine art.

Kennedy does this and then eats a light lunch back on the plane. Tuesday, after leaving the lunch at Roseburg, he had a bowl of soup.

Janet Des Rosiers, the petite little gal who does the honors on the plane as the combination stewardess and secretary, knows all these things. She also knows how to make traveling reporters relax. The beer is cold.

Howard Baird, the veteran pilot of the plane, enjoys his job. He's been flying such VIP trips for a long time and insists he enjoys the irregular hours. "I wouldn't like a job with regular hours," he told me.

Baird is a golfer and plays local courses when he can. He remembers last year when weather kept him from playing the Pebble Beach course at Monterey.

"The fog was so thick we couldn't see the ball," Baird recalls. "But we could fly... quite a deal when the weather is too bad to play golf but good enough for flying."

Mrs. Peter Lawford, Kennedy's sister who married the movie actor, doesn't like flying. She's a ground-lover and when a Corvallis Democrat offered to drive her to Newport, she responded with enthusiasm.

I'm not prepared to pass on John Kennedy's physical condition, but I do know he takes a lot of medicine in his toilet kit. I spied a little in his hotel room in Portland and found (just by looking from three feet away) six vials of prescriptions.

Really, he looks healthy. He is lean and has a good physique. His cheeks are ruddy and his staff says he bears up well under the strain of several speeches and several hundred handshakes a day. The handshake, by the way, is grab-it-quick-and-hold-it-for-a-short-time type, a different type than the grab-and-drop technique of other politicians.

Having watched such newsmen as Sander van Oaker of NBC (Huntly-Brinkley), Blair Clark of CBS, Mary McGroarty of the Washington (DC) Star and Bob Ruth of U.S. News and World Report for two days, I've come to the conclusion that it's almost as hard work covering a VIP as it is for him to woo votes. The days are long and the working conditions are rough. This is a business hard on the patience and physical abilities of the participants.

Girl Gets 'A' in ROTC

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The first girl to enroll in an ROTC military science class at Florida State University made an "A" in the course last semester to place in the top 10 per cent of a class of 450 male students. Joan Drawdy, 18, of Homestead, Fla., said Saturday she plans to take more military courses and apply for a commission as a nutritionist in the Air Force.

Writer Says Chessman Should Be Spared

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mystery writer Erle Stanley Gardner said Friday he thinks Caryl Chessman's life should be spared even though he believes the convict-author is guilty.

"I'm not a Chessman fan," Gardner told United Press International. "I think the guy is pretty much of a warped personality. But I hate to see a man executed for a crime where there was no life taken."

Gardner said there was no possibility that "The Court of Last Resort, which he originated, would take Chessman's case."

70 Persons to Attend Crime Prevention Parley

SALEM (AP) — Seventy persons will attend Oregon's first statewide conference on crime prevention here next Tuesday, Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton, who called the meeting, said Friday.

Addresses will be given by Erle Stanley Gardner, mystery story writer, and Circuit Judge Virgil Langtry of Portland.

Those taking part include law enforcement officials, state institution superintendents, and representatives of business, labor, parents, teachers, youth groups and churches.

There will be panel discussions on the extent of crime, its causes, present efforts to prevent crime, and recommendations of future methods of preventing it.

Judge to Moderate

BAKER (AP) — County Judge Lloyd Rea has left for San Diego, Calif., where he will moderate a panel discussion Monday at the annual meeting of the National Assn. of County Officials.

Rea is a director of the association. Others attending from Oregon include County Judge D. R. Cook of Pendleton, president of the Oregon Assn. of County Officials, and Ken Tollenaar of Salem, executive secretary of the state organization.

Dog Pack Hunted

SALEM (UPI) — Ervin Ward, Marion County dog control officer, has ordered an emergency policy of shooting "on sight" all unlicensed dogs loose in county rural areas due to sheep losses.

Ten sheep have been killed by dogs since last Sunday. Ward said four dogs have been shot but others in the pack are still loose.
