Four Pastors Accept Calls; One Resigns, One Arrives

Four Eugene ministers — The Rev. Charles Moore, the Rev. Alway J. Bell, the Rev. James Mead and the Rev. Robert L. Henkel — have submitted resignations to their congregations.

In addition, the Rev. J. P. Stockett of Cottage Grove Church of the Nazarene, will leave the Emerald Empire in June for new pastoral duties.

A new minister for the Church of God, Springfield, has arrived to begin his work here.

MOORE RESIGNS

The Rev. Charles Moore, who began the organization of Emerald Baptist Church, Eugene, nearly seven years ago and has been serving as pastor as the church grew in size, has accepted a call to the Grant Park Baptist Church, Portland.

Vice president of the Oregon Baptist Convention, he has been active in the Central Lane Council of Churches and the Eugene Ministerial Assn. He will end his pastoral duties in Eugene May 21, and the church is expected to name an interim minister soon.

A minister who saw his mission congregation grow from five or six adults to 100 adults has accepted a call from the Bayshore Baptist Church, San Francisco.

The minister is the Rev. Alway J. Bell, who has served Immanuel Baptist Chapel for five years. He plans to begin his work in San Francisco on the first Sunday in June. The Rev. Bell was in evangelistic work before coming to Eugene.

Members of the Eugene Unitarian Church accepted the resignation of the Rev. James Mead as minister last Sunday at the church's annual meeting. The Rev. Mead has served the congregation since February, 1957.

Future plans, the Rev. Mead said, are indefinite, but he plans to retire from the ministry.

The Rev. Robert Henkel, pastor of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, Eugene, resigned his pastorate Thursday preparatory to his accepting a call to organize a congregation in Brockville, Ontario, Canada.

Pastor Henkel organized the church in 1955, and supervised the congregation's building program. His new post will be in the Thousand Islands area of the St. Lawrence River. There is no Lutheran church within 30 miles of the area. His last service at Our Saviour's will be June 11.

GOING IN JUNE

A Cottage Grove minister, the Rev. J. P. Stockett, has resigned his post with the Church of the Nazarene in Cottage Grove to accept a call to the Church of the Nazarene in Sierra Madre, Calif.

He organized the Cottage Grove Church a year ago, and it now meets in the American Legion Hall. He expects to leave the latter part of June.
