

Pen Pal in Chinju Wants to Know How Come We're Like We Are

By DAN WYANT
Of the Register-Guard

"How come almost all Americans are different colors of hair and eyes?" wonders Tek Han Shin, a 12-year-old student at the Chinju, Korea, "Golden Star" primary school. "Our friends here in Korea have all same color of hair and eyes," Tek wrote in one of a "positive deluge" of letters which students in a sixth grade class at Westmoreland School have been receiving from pen pals in Chinju.

Mrs. Edith Stubbs, the class teacher, said the correspondence was an outgrowth of a bulletin board featuring items on the Eugene-Chinju "sister city" program.

Korean students at the University of Oregon "have been very wonderful" in translating the letters, Mrs. Stubbs said. "We have been fortunate in receiving letters from cross-sections of the social strata," she said, "including letters from the grandson and granddaughter of the mayor of Chinju, several professors' sons, and some very poor children."

Some of the students have exchanged photos. One Korean boy sent a picture of his little league baseball team.

The new steering committee for the Eugene-Chinju sister city program will hold its second meeting next Thursday to hear Forrester R. Pitts give a first hand report on Chinju.

Pitts, a member of the University of Oregon faculty who has been serving on an economic mission in Korea, is expected back in Eugene Monday. Pitts did most of the leg-work involved in setting up the sister-city program with Chinju and has served as Mayor Edwin E. Cone's special representative at several formal occasions.

Richard W. Lindholm, chairman of the sister-city steering committee, says Pitts will be available for consultation and speaking engagements next Wednesday and Thursday and will be glad to advise on projects involving the two cities. He has slides showing people and scenes in Korea, particularly in Chinju.

Efforts are continuing to arrange for Chinju's mayor, Kim Baik Yong, to visit Eugene with the help of U.S. State Department finances. Lindholm has suggested to the Eugene city council that a formal invitation to the mayor might assist in getting the project approved. The council plans to pass a resolution Monday night extending an invitation and welcome to Mayor Kim.

Students at Woodrow Wilson Junior High School recently raised $36 in a benefit basketball game and have spent it on pencils to send to some 750 students in Chinju. The pencils have a greeting from Wilson Junior High printed on them.

The fourth annual National Sister City Conference is scheduled in Washington, D.C., on June 12-14. Over 200 communities with sister city programs (or those interested in them) are expected to attend. Lindholm expects to be in Washington on other business at that date and plans to represent Eugene at the conference.

Fencing Law To Get Study

Springfield councilmen Monday evening will consider passage of an ordinance requiring owners of abandoned ponds to fence them in.

The meeting will start at 7:30 at the Springfield City Hall.

According to a proposed ordinance, owners of abandoned ponds would have to enclose them with fences at least four feet high. The council in April requested City Atty. Robert Carmichael to draw up an ordinance proposal after receiving a petition signed by 62 property owners protesting a pond at 33rd and N Streets.

In another action, the council will conduct a public hearing on a request by Oscar Brandt for a temporary permit to operate a wrecking business in a commercial (C-1) zone. Brandt plans to conduct the business at 5196 McKenzie Highway.

The council will also conduct a public hearing on a request by Jess Archey, 1360 D St., for a variance from side yard requirements in a residential zone to permit construction of a carport within five feet of the side property line.

Monday May Decide Its Fate DST Plan on Council Agenda

A Eugene city council decision Monday night on whether to open and close the city hall one hour earlier may decide the fate of a Chamber of Commerce plan for daylight saving time.

The council will have before it a committee-of-the-whole recommendation that hours of city hall business be changed from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. to 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. during the summer.

That is as far as the city can legally go toward establishing daylight saving time, City Atty. Herman Hendershott has ruled, although merchants and residents are free to move their clocks ahead an hour.

A chamber of commerce group is waiting for council action on the city hall hours before going ahead with a plan to put the community on unofficial daylight saving time. The chamber group and individuals to turn up their clocks an hour on midnight, June 4.

The council will have a number of other items on its agenda. Among them will be:

- Bids for a group of street paving and sewer projects.
- Recommendations for rezoning the drive-in theater at 2860 Willamette St. to commercial use for a new shopping center and for a zoning variance to permit operation of a retail lumber yard at Coburg Road and Rustic Place.
- An appeal for reconsideration of a revised zoning request for property along the north side of W. 18th Avenue, west from Polk Street. The city attorney will rule on whether the council can reconsider this item without a new formal public hearing.
- Proposed revisions in the downtown parking meter and time-limit zones.

• A committee recommendation calling for a study of the possibility of reversing the traffic flow on the 11th-13th one-way couplet, along with making part of 10th Avenue a one-way street.

• A request by the University of Oregon for approval of an application for planning and survey funds to the federal government for the university's proposed "east campus urban renewal project." In conjunction with this, the council must also approve a "program for community betterment" to make the university eligible for federal assistance in the project.
