'Dear Abby'

—Abigail Van Buren—

DEAR ABBY: What does a lady do when a gentleman, whom she prefers to call "Mr. Blank," says, "Please call me George?"

We work in a very informal office and I must address him frequently, but I do not care to be on a first-name basis with him. He started to call me "Grace" right off the bat, and I thought if I called him "Mr. Blank" he would catch on, but it hasn't worked out that way. He keeps asking me to call him "George." How can I put a stop to his familiarity without making an enemy of him?

GRACE (ugh!)

DEAR GRACE: You can't, so don't make an issue of it. He is probably only trying to be friendly. Be a little more "graceful" and perhaps, in time, it will be "George."

DEAR ABBY: I don't mind a little horseplay at the dinner table, but my family carries it too far. My husband and our three sons (all old enough to know better) throw crusts, bones and anything that will "sail" into the wastebasket while sitting at the dinner table. They keep score, and bet pennies for bulls'-eyes. I don't care for such goings on. Any suggestions?

COUTH

DEAR COUTH: Fun is fun, but there is a time and place for everything. Buy your overgrown boys a horseshoe pitching game, and let them take their horseplay outside AFTER dinner.

DEAR ABBY: There is going to be a wedding in our family. It is not going to be anything fancy because the bride's family (our side) does not have much money to work with. The groom's side has plenty of money, but nobody on his side spoke up and offered to help out so the young people could have a big beautiful wedding to remember. We have been having a big argument over whether it would be all right for the groom's people to help out in a case like this. I don't see why they shouldn't. The bride's parents say they wouldn't accept help from the boy's parents if they offered it. Who is right?

BRIDE'S AUNT

DEAR AUNT: The bride's parents are right. The wedding is the responsibility of the bride's family. They should put on a wedding in keeping with their pocketbook. I admire them for it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO V.F.S.: Go to the CATHOLIC CHARITIES OFFICE in your nearest city. They will help make plans for you and your child. Good luck!

PETUNIA!

The snows outside are rising higher — But goodness, what a sulky five!

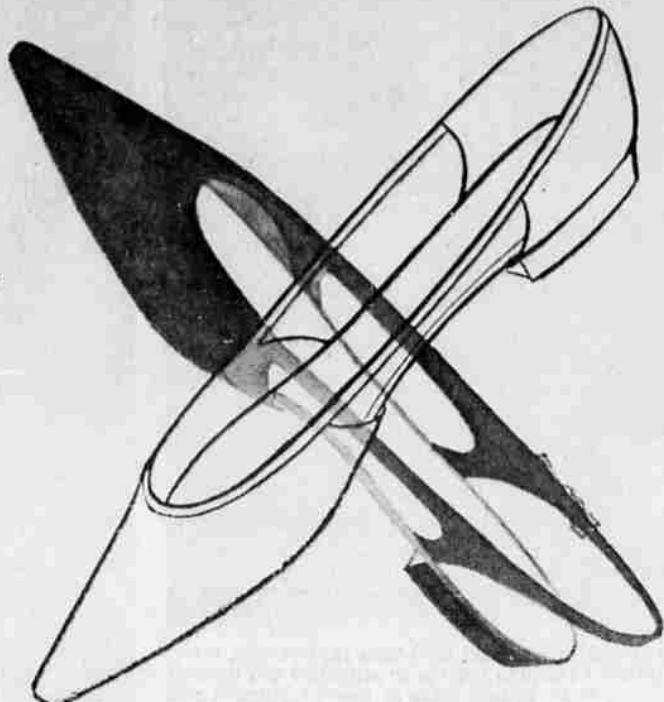

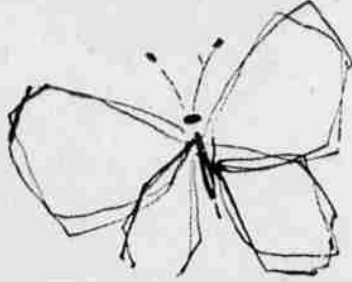

To make it burn brighter, Petunia, sprinkle a little sugar on it. Works fine!

A great big welcome to one of our favorite people, Mrs. Mabel Lovegren. She'll be here in the store Monday through Friday demonstrating our Spica Island products. This is an absolutely perfect time of year for you to experience her adventurous approach to cooking because the January doldrums will vanish in a flash when you catch her infectious enthusiasm for cooking with a flair.

Once you learn some of her simple tricks with seasoning and herbs you'll wonder how you and your family ever managed before. Old standbys and economical favorites take on new glamour with a pinch of this and a soupcon of that. She has lots of brand new recipes, too, that will add zest and interest to your menu planning.

While you're in the gift department absorbing Mrs. Lovegren's know-how, take a look at the sparkling adjuncts to entertaining. Big news in table accessories is color and lots of it. Added to our already sensational collection of table mats are new ones of "Sham" weave, a metallic creation of elegance that, believe it or not, can be washed under the faucet. They're rich enough looking to grace a Shah's palace — black and silver, black and gold, copper, silver, turquoise and pale green and at only $1.25 each. There are napkins to match with a metallic woven stripe to pick up the color of your choice.

Speaking of napkins, the current fashion now in table setting is to place the napkin in an unexpected place — in a goblet or standing above the serving plate. To do this effectively the napkins themselves must be interesting and that's why we've such a large assortment in every fabric from black and white ticking to lustrous saten printed with fat roses or crisp-looking vegetables.

Color has found its way to hot pads, too, and high time. Ours are large enough for your biggest casseroles and the hues are enticing — chartreuse, purple, coral, pink, brown, and blue and green in several shades. They're $1.50 each and also come attractively packaged in pairs for unusual shower gifts.

The world of paper has new glamour, too, with co-ordinated napkins and coasters in wild, wild designs and colors. This reminds us of our always-popular metal trays with compartments and paper fillers to fit. They make entertaining a breeze and they're most attractive, $3.98 for a set of four. First floor.

The linen department isn't the only section with fabulous January bargains (and don't miss them!). In the cosmetics department, there are any number of money-saving buys — Frances Denney has their once-a-year special price on Viva masque and multi-layer moisturizer (two things I would never be without) and their quick cleanser is now only $4.00 (regularly $6.50).
