

Terrorism in Algiers

Blasts Rock Tax Offices

ALGIERS (AP)—Fourteen persons were killed and eight wounded Thursday in a new wave of Secret Army Organization terrorism in Algiers.

The terrorists struck in rapid succession in Algiers and its suburbs while top military and civil authorities were meeting in nearby Rocher Noir to discuss means of re-establishing order in Algeria's major cities.

Most of the victims of Thursday's killings were Moslems. In one secret army commando raid, three Moslems were shot to death and another wounded in an open air fruit and vegetable market in the center of Algiers' European quarter.

The other attacks were scattered through greater Algiers.

Two powerful explosions wrecked government tax offices in downtown Algiers. Fire followed the blasts and damaged or destroyed files. No injuries were reported. The secret army is opposed to Europeans paying taxes to the government and has set up a collection system of its own.

The secret army seeks to maintain French rule in Algeria.

Louis Joxe, Algerian affairs minister, called together top officials to discuss the maintenance of order in the big cities.

Major preoccupation of authorities is the right-wing secret army terrorism in Oran. A showdown between French forces and secret army terrorists is expected there soon.

At least eighteen persons were killed and 181 wounded in terrorist actions Wednesday in Algeria's major cities. Most of the victims were Moslems.

PARIS (AP)—A company of security police, about 200 men, was dispatched Thursday to Algiers by air. Wednesday, a company of riot police was sent to Oran, a second center of activity by the secret army.

The reports, brought here by travelers from Da Nang, were not confirmed by U.S. military authorities or South Vietnamese government officials.

The travelers said the two soldiers are being led from village to village by the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas who are trying to convince the villagers that the American captives are evidence of U.S. intervention in South Viet Nam.

Da Nang, on the South China seacoast, is about 350 miles northeast of Saigon and about 100 miles south of the 17th Parallel, which divides North and South Viet Nam.

The reports conflicted with a South Vietnamese government statement which said the Viet Cong were taking the Americans through the dense jungles of South Viet Nam's central highlands towards the sanctuary of the Laotian border.

The two missing soldiers are Sgt. I.C. Francis Quinn of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Sgt. George E. Groom of Stewartsville, Mo. Quinn and Groom, along with two other U.S. Army enlisted men, were training a group of South Vietnamese soldiers when they were ambushed near the town of An Chau, west of Da Nang, April 8.

All four were captured, but two of the men, Staff Sgt. Wayne E. Marchand of Plattsmouth, Neb., and Spec. James Gabriel of Honolulu, were murdered later by the Viet Cong because they were too badly wounded and apparently were slowing the rebels' escape.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

Miner is asking for $45 million to finance the plan, which has been developed by leading educators throughout the country.

There would be eight to 10 centers for testing and development of educational plans.

Miner's assistant, Allen Lee, went to Washington with him.

The first of the proposed centers would be in Oregon.

The Northwest center's first projects would include a study of the high school drop-out problem, and making the high school program more comprehensive.

(AP Wirephoto)

Titans Ready

The first operational USAF Titan I Missile Squadron took over the Titan launching complex east of Denver Wednesday in a brief ceremony. Nine missiles turned over to the Strategic Air Command are now operational. Two of the missiles are shown in this picture.

JFK Family (and Charlie) Starts Its Easter Vacation

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President and Mrs. Kennedy, their two children and the dog, Charlie, settled down Tuesday in an ocean front mansion behind a hibiscus hedge for a 10-day Easter vacation. The only item on the official schedule was for the President to tap a telegraph key Saturday to open the World's Fair at Seattle, Wash., across the continent.

The President's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, was at the airport to greet his son at mid-afternoon under partly cloudy skies and temperatures in the mid 70s.

The elder Kennedy, recuperating from a stroke suffered last December, was driven to the airport in a dark blue convertible. The President's mother is in Europe.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

U.N. to the Rescue

Congo Troops Interrupt Tshombe Trip

By ADRIAN PORTER
Of the Associated Press

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo—President Moise Tshombe flew into Elisabethville Thursday after U.N. soldiers with fixed bayonets deployed against Congo government troops who had prevented his departure from Leopoldville.

"We must pay tribute to the United Nations for all they have done for my protection and for the protection of my colleagues," the Katangan president told a crowd of 5,000 as he landed here in a U.N. chartered plane.

The secessionist president had been in Leopoldville for more than a month for unity talks with Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula. He started to return to his capital Wednesday.

Congo authorities ordered five trucks to block the runway as his U.N. plane was ready to take off and prevented his departure.

Tshombe and 22 other passengers remained in the plane despite the steaming temperature, while U.N. officials tried to iron out the situation.

Robert Gardiner, U.N. operations chief in the Congo, finally gave the order to U.N. Nigerian troops to clear the runway and permit Tshombe to leave.

The United Nations had guaranteed Tshombe's safety

and his freedom to return to his capital if he would go to Leopoldville to discuss conditions for ending the secession of Katanga.

Eyewitnesses said Nigerian troops with bayonets ran to positions surrounding the runway on Gardiner's order, and jeeps

aced up and down. Congolese soldiers finally gave way.

Gardiner said that while waiting to take off, Tshombe still talked of returning to Leopoldville for further negotiations.

To the cheering crowd in Elisabethville's main square, however, Tshombe spoke bitterly of the Adoula government, and praised the United Nations.

"Adoula and I have not had one real meeting yet," Tshombe said, charging that the central government acted in bad faith and had no thought of real negotiations. But he said he would meet with his cabinet in an effort to contrive a new approach to negotiations.

In leaving Leopoldville, Tshombe said he was coming to Elisabethville merely for an Easter visit.

In Elisabethville, acting Katanga President Evariste Kimba declared Wednesday night that the central government's action against Tshombe showed "its absolute disdain for the negotiations."

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—President Kwame Nkrumah has fired Industries Minister Krobo Edu, who recently came under fire when his wife purchased a gold-plated bed in London worth $8,400, the Ghana News Agency said Thursday.

Nkrumah Fires Aide

Robert Gardiner, U.N. operations chief in the Congo, finally gave the order to U.N. Nigerian troops to clear the runway and permit Tshombe to leave.

The United Nations had guaranteed Tshombe's safety

and his freedom to return to his capital if he would go to Leopoldville to discuss conditions for ending the secession of Katanga.

Eyewitnesses said Nigerian troops with bayonets ran to positions surrounding the runway on Gardiner's order, and jeeps

aced up and down. Congolese soldiers finally gave way.

Gardiner said that while waiting to take off, Tshombe still talked of returning to Leopoldville for further negotiations.

To the cheering crowd in Elisabethville's main square, however, Tshombe spoke bitterly of the Adoula government, and praised the United Nations.

"Adoula and I have not had one real meeting yet," Tshombe said, charging that the central government acted in bad faith and had no thought of real negotiations. But he said he would meet with his cabinet in an effort to contrive a new approach to negotiations.

In leaving Leopoldville, Tshombe said he was coming to Elisabethville merely for an Easter visit.

In Elisabethville, acting Katanga President Evariste Kimba declared Wednesday night that the central government's action against Tshombe showed "its absolute disdain for the negotiations."

K Predicts Red Victory

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev Thursday told 6,000 cheering Young Communist League members that "no medicine can save the rotten capitalist world" from the march of communism.

Khrushchev addressed the national convention of the league for 90 minutes and was applauded for another quarter of an hour, the Tass news agency reported.

"We are keeping the Western hothouses at bay by the strength and the might of the Soviet armed forces, the might of all the Socialist camp," he said, stressing the role of youth in this effort.

He warned of the dangers of Western "ideological subversion" but said this will fail because succeeding generations of Soviet citizens subscribe to Communist ideas.

The old capitalist world cannot advance any idea," he said. "No medicine can save the rotten capitalist world. The new, militant, and eager will triumph. And this is the Communist movement."

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.

The presidential family is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Michael Paul, not far from the elder Kennedy's mansion.

Kennedy plans to stay here until April 27, when he returns to Washington to greet British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Both of them will be guests that night at a banquet given by the White House correspondents and news photographers.

The President came smiling down the ramp, greeted his father and personally took over the driving to return his father to the Kennedy winter home.

Mrs. Kennedy and the children, Caroline 4, and John Jr., 1, followed in another car.