

Young Jack, 3½, a Big Brother Now

Mother's Day holds special meaning in the home of Don and Georgia Snyder of Vida this year.

Something much more important than cards or gifts took place this past week before Mother's Day—they brought their second son home from the hospital.

And Mrs. Snyder's nicest gift this year is the pride and joy of watching her oldest son, Jack, 3½ years old, as he learns to accept the responsibility of being a "big brother."

Young Jack faced up to the problem well, albeit with an occasional moment of doubt. He ended up by helping Mother hold week-old Steven, and even managed a smile.

Why don't they start a "Brother's Day?"
