Griffith, Dupas Vie Tonight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Hard hitting Emile Griffith of New York remained the favorite to retain his world welterweight championship tonight against elusive Ralph Dupas of New Orleans.

The 15-round match, which will not be carried by radio or television in this country, will be fought in the Las Vegas Convention Center.

Griffith, 23-year-old native of the Virgin Islands, was listed at 2-5 in the betting odds to turn back the challenge of his 26-year-old opponent. Dupas is ranked as the No. 1 contender.

Emile regained the championship last March in New York when he knocked out Benny Kid Paret in the 12th round.

Ten days later the Cuban kicked three times in a single round the match will be stopped.

Dupas has been a professional for 12 years. He has had 115 bouts, won 94, lost 15 and three knockdown rules will be in effect.

This means a fighter floored must be given at least eight counts and if a fighter is dropped three times in a single round the match will be stopped.

Griffith has had only 32 ring engagements and is a far more explosive performer. Of his 29 wins, 11 were knockouts.

Skala Beaten In Women's Golf Tourney

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Mrs. Ann Casey Johnstone, 42, and three talented youngsters moved into semifinals of the 62nd Women's Western Amateur Golf Tournament Friday at South Bend Country Club.

Mrs. Johnstone, the only former winner in the field, was playing her usual canny game and having good results with a croquet mallet-type putter, but the gallery was getting most of its kicks from her opponent Friday, Carol Sorenson, 19, of Janesville, Wis., and Clifford Ann Creed, 23.

Miss Creed, best amateur in seven tourneys this year, was matched with Barbara Fay White, 24. They are old Louisiana rivals. Clifford Ann from Alexandria and Barbara Fay from Shreveport.

Miss Sorenson took an 8 and 6 victory Thursday over Doris Phillips, former Southern Illinois champion from St. Louis.

Miss Creed was two under par in a 4 and 3 victory over Mrs. Paul Dye Jr. of Indianapolis, former Indiana champion. Julie Hull of Anderson, present Indiana champ, couldn't hold a one-hole advantage at the turn and yielded to Mrs. Johnstone 2 and 1.

Miss White, a Texas Christian student, defeated Mrs. Michael J. Skala of Roseburg, Ore., former National Junior champion, 2 and 1.

Miss White lost this hole but advanced to the semifinals of the tourney with a 2-1 victory over Mrs. Mike Skala of Roseburg, Ore.

Coast Guard Inspection Set At Reservoirs

A Coast Guard mobile boarding team will be particularly watchful for any boats operated in reckless or negligent manner in their inspection tour on Lane County's six flood control reservoirs during the next two weeks.

The three-man boarding team will make detailed inspections of all motor boats and has been instructed to cite all boat owners whose safety equipment fails to meet the minimum requirements of federal law. Violations will be reported to 13th Coast Guard District headquarters at Seattle and the boat owner will be ordered to correct the deficiency within two weeks.

Among the items required by federal law: One Coast Guard-approved life preserver, buoyant cushion, ring buoy or buoyant vest in good condition for each person aboard.

Fire extinguishers. Outboard boats less than 26 feet which are of open construction and do not carry passengers for hire are the only craft exempt from carrying fire extinguishers.

A horn or whistle for all motor boats from 16 through 40 feet. Motor boats over 26 feet must have a bell.

Flame arrestors for carburetors on inboards.

Numbers for all motor boats with more than ten horsepower. Numbers at least three inches high must be painted or mounted on both sides of the bow in color contrasting to the hull.

McCulloch will meet the host Longview Shoremen in the opening round Friday night. The Wicals, Art and Chuck, and Bob Willis will pitch for manager Kurt Faikenstein's Eugene entry.

Bob Jones and Jerry Lake have been the leading sluggers for McCulloch, which last weekend divided a doubleheader with Lake Grove and swept a pair from ABC Auto Supply of Portland.

Four Golfers Eye Public Links Title

TOWN OF TONAWANDA, N. Y. (AP)—Three little guys and a rangy Arizona tee off Friday in the 36-hole semifinals of the National Amateur Public Links golf championship.

The little guys are the 1961 titleholder, Dick Sikas of Springdale, Ark., Warren Strout of Speedway, Ind., and Hung Soo Ahn of Honolulu, Hawaii. The man from Arizona is blond Wayne Breck, a 25-year-old construction worker from Scottsdale.

The first semifinal match sent putter against putter, Sikas against Strout. The long-hitting Breck will test the equally distance-stroking Ahn.

Sikas, a 6-foot, 140-pound University of Arkansas senior aiming for his second consecutive Public Links crown, scrambled past erratic-putting John Joseph, Hayward, Calif., 1-up, to gain the quarterfinals Thursday. Then he demoralized 37-year-old Hubert Farmer Toledo, Ohio, 7 and 6, in his most impressive showing of the tournament.

The stocky, 5-foot, 8-inch Strout, a 38-year-old electrical engineer, defeated University of Wichita junior Lamont Kaser, 1-up, and 31-year-old Herb Howe, Minneapolis, Minn., 2-up in his two matches.

The 32-year-old Ahn, a 5-foot, 6-inch, 133-pound larpur who is employed as a draftsman, reached the semi-finals by downing former boxer Lou Sabotin, Warren, Ohio, 3 and 1, and college boy Alan Heedt, Peoria, Ill., 1-up in a sudden-death playoff. The 6-foot-3-inch, 195-pound Breck, a former Arizona State student born in Minnesota, worked his way into the semi-finals in his first Public Links appearance. He launched Thursday's play with a 4 and 3 victory over Masa Kaya, Honolulu, Hawaii, and then outfought John Schlee, Memphis, Tenn., 2 and 1.

In Battle With Babe Ruth

Money Lost, Recalls Mays

VANCOUVER (AP)—When Carl Mays, the former submarine pitching star of the New York Yankees, gets to reminiscing about his career in the major leagues, the talk inevitably turns to Babe Ruth.

"The Babe and money used to have a running battle," said Mays, a roommate of Ruth's for 10 high-stepping years. "Money lost."

Mays was recalling a post-season barnstorming tour by a team that included Ruth, Fred Hoffman, Wally Schang and himself of the Yankees, and pitcher Jeff Teague of the New York Giants.

"It was in the early 1920s," Mays said. "Ruth was to get $3,500 a day weekdays, $5,000 if we played on Saturdays and $6,000 Sundays. I was his unofficial business manager-banker."

"Each day I would put the Babe's earnings in a cigar box, tape it. Each night the Babe would sit down and I'd give him his boxes of money.

"I believe I gave him $90,000 for the tour. It was fantastic the way he would spend it."

"One weekday we didn't draw from our own pockets and make up the Babe's $3,500. We were sitting around glum and Babe asked us what was wrong. We told him and he said, 'Gimmie my cigar box.'"

"I'll just take the course stuff," he said, rifling through the pile of the $20, $50 and $100 bills. Then he tossed the box to us. There was $3,800 left."

Mays, now 71, spent 15 years as a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox, Cincinnati Reds, the Giants and the Yankees. He was here in his role as scout for the Kansas City Athletics.

Ruth, he said, was a great ball player, but the greatest, in his opinion, was Ty Cobb. "Ruth could fly. Cobb ball park for you," he said, "but Cobb would beat you in it."

Mays, who pitched 10 winning seasons and compiled a lifetime record of 205 victories and 127 defeats including a 27-9 season in 1921 with the Yankees, still bears a foot-long scar on his left leg from a run-in with Cobb's spikes. Twice in that game he had dragged Cobb.

"Cobb then deked a bunt down the first base side and I had to cover the bag," related Mays. "He came down into me like a high and got even."

Mays' best pitch was his fast ball and one of them ended in tragedy. Cleveland shortstop Ray Chapman, when he was hunting, developed a habit of running up on the pitch to get a flying start toward first base.

He tried it against Mays one game, missed the bunt and was hit on the left temple by the ball. He died the next day.

"It was the only thing," Mays said. "Words can't describe it. I lit."

Business Beat Building in State Gains Over 1961

By BOB NEWCOMB Of the Register-Guard

May contracts for construction in Oregon totaled $39.6 million—up 32 per cent over May of 1961, according to figures just released by the F. W. Dodge Corp. of New York, which specializes in construction news.

The valuation of heavy engineering in the state that month hit $10.8 million, actually a drop of 2 per cent compared to the same month last year. But non-residential contracts, totaling $10.6 million for an increase of 27 per cent, and residential contracts at $18 million for a 129 per cent increase, meant an overall rise over last year's total figure for the month.

A breakdown for the first five months of this year, according to the report:

Non-residential, $47.4 million, up 62 per cent compared with the same period last year; residential, $73.2 million, up 24 per cent; heavy engineering, $67.2 million, down 40 per cent.

TWO RETAILERS TRANSFERRED

sales and merchandise manager, and Ray Petersen, division manager at the Eugene store of J. C. Penney Co. This week are being transferred to new positions.

Store manager Ward Beck announced that Petersen is going to Oregon City to become manager of a new J. C. Penney Co. store now under construction there, due to open in November.

Petersen, he said, is leaving this week for Redwood City, Calif., where he will become sales and merchandise manager of another of the firm's stores.

Ingersol has been with the Eugene store for the past six years, serving as sales and merchandise manager for the past two years. He and his wife, Joyce, and their two children reside at 3640 Glen Oak Dr., Eugene.

Petersen, a graduate of the University of Oregon in business administration, has been with the store here for nine years, serving as division manager for the past three years.

He and his wife, Mary Ann, and their three children live at 3910 Donald St. No successors have yet been named to the vacancies created by the transfers, said Beck.

MOUNTAIN TREKS STARTED

Two Eugene men and partners in Oregon Guide Service at Crescent Lake, have announced the seasonal opening of their guided lake trips onto the higher slopes of the Cascades.

Robert Sailor, a 1959 graduate of the Willamette University law school, and Lawrence Fleming, who owns the Fleming Log-Ripping Service in Eugene, opened the new service last year as partners.

Snow has melted sufficiently, Sailor said, to permit pack trips into the higher elevations for fishing and camping at high-mountain lakes (at the 6,500-foot-elevation level).

Sailor and Fleming serve as guides on the trips. Horses are provided for trips lasting from a half-day up to any length desired. New this year, starting June 15, the service will offer chartered all-day trail rides.

The guide service operates from a cabin on Highway 58 nine miles east of the summit. Reservations may be made by calling Crescent Lake 9 or writing to Box 18, Crescent Lake.

DOWN BUT NOT OUT

Woody Slater, field underwriter in the Eugene office of the New York Life Insurance Co. and immediate past president of the Eugene Assn. of Life Underwriters, was reported doing well this week after suffering two crushed vertebrae last Sunday.

Slater was hurt in a fall in the back yard of his home at 2750 Capital Dr., Eugene, and was hospitalized for several days. He returned home Thursday, but will be wearing a brace for a couple of months.

He does carry health and accident insurance, to answer the natural question.

Stocks Close Mixed; Gold Mines Rally

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market closed mixed Friday, ending a quiet session.

Volume for the day was estimated at 3.6 billion shares compared with 5.37 billion Thursday.

Gains and losses of most key stocks were fractional, some going to a point or so.

The decline in the U.S. gold supply to another 23-year low provided the excuse for a rally of gold mining stocks. Homestake gained more than 2, Dome Mines and Campbell Red Lake better than a point each. McIntyre Porcupine canceled an early gain and eased.

Ford and General Motors wiped out early losses and traded about unchanged. Chrysler was off slightly and American Motors up a fraction while Studebaker eased.

IBM was down a couple of points and Financial Federation about 3. Losses of a point or so were taken by Monsanto, Du Pont, Air Reduction and International Telephone.

U. S. Steel canceled most of an early loss of about a point.

Eastman Kodak showed a gain exceeding a point. Stocks were down on a broad front earlier as profit taking was resumed after the week's advance topped out early Thursday.

The Dow Jones industrial average at 2 p.m. EDT was up .60 at 591.07.

Government and corporate bond prices were unchanged to a shade higher in late trading.

Slight Drop Noted in Some Wood Prices

Some lumber and plywood prices took a slight drop this week in what is being described by industry spokesmen as an apparent short-term adjustment.

According to Random Lengths, Eugene market newsletter, some dimensions of Douglas fir lumber this week were selling for prices ranging from unchanged to $3 below last week's levels. Sanded plywood has dipped to a $60-$62 mark per thousand square feet with trading reported slow.

The newsletter suggests the reasons for the adjustment appear to be less interest on the part of buyers as the chances of an industry-wide labor dispute seem to have lessened, therefore making quick lumber purchases appear less urgent.

Lumber market activity was especially active between June 25 and July 4, the letter states, and prices hit peak levels. The adjustment is not expected to develop into a general price decline, however, in view of continued basically good demand, good order files, and sharply reduced inventory levels.

Booth-Kelly 'Alums' Invited to Reunion

Residents of the Emerald Empire who worked or lived at the Booth-Kelly Lumber Co. camps have been invited to a picnic and reunion Sunday at EWEB Park, Leburg, La.

Picnic activities will begin at 1 p.m. standard, 2 p.m. daylight. The picnic committee will furnish coffee, soft drinks and ice cream.

Further information is available by calling RI 7-2020.
