

Rural Electric Cooperatives To Meet in Eugene Monday

The regional meeting of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Assn. will be held in Eugene Monday and Tuesday. The session will be attended by delegates from Alaska, Washington, Oregon, California, Montana, Idaho, Nevada and Utah. Information of special interest to power use advisors, home economists, office managers and other key personnel will be given, according to the advance agenda. One of the highlights is expected to be an address Tuesday morning by Norman Clapp, chief of the Rural Electrification Administration.

SP Employees To Give Blood Here Monday

A blood donor program will be conducted Monday and Tuesday among employees of the Southern Pacific Railroad in the Eugene office. Dr. Vance M. Strange, chief surgeon of the Southern Pacific Hospital Dept., in a letter to employees, said: "Over 140 units of whole blood are being used each month at the General Hospital and at many points where emergency treatment is furnished in the care of contributors of the Southern Pacific Hospital Department."

UO Professor Contributes To Book on Group Stresses

Robert Dubin, research professor of sociology in the University of Oregon, is one of the contributors to a book on the various strains and stresses between and within groups. The book, edited by Muzaffer Sherif, director of the Institute of Group Relations and research professor of psychology at the University of Oklahoma, was published in New York. The 13 contributors to the book are top social scientists who presented papers during a 1961 interdisciplinary lecture series in social psychology at the University of Oklahoma. Since friendship or hatred, alignment or hostility between human groups are the most fateful and the most complicated in human relations today, the aspects are presented in the chapters written by anthropologists, psychologists, sociologists, and political scientists. The book presents detailed studies of groups and organizations, leaders and followers, and their negotiations, alignments and conflicts in political, industrial and cultural areas. Dubin's contribution is entitled "Leadership in Union-Management Relations as an Intergroup System." It deals with the behavior of union and management leaders in collective bargaining.
