(Brought to you in the interest of good grooming by Tiffany's)

DEAR MISS LAVONNE: What do you recommend to use as an eyeliner? I am very interested in wearing some eye makeup but don't know where to start. I have experimented with a couple of products but they always smear by the end of the day. I would appreciate your advice. N. N.

DEAR N. N.: I will be most happy to recommend the names of the products that you are interested in if you will just stop by your nearest Tiffany's Super Drug and ask at the cosmetic counter. I do not mention product names in my column. I am so pleased that you are interested in "eye sparkle" and do suggest that you wear eyeliner, very subtly. It takes practice to be able to apply eyeliner properly regardless of the product, so be certain that it looks well done when you wear it. I recommend eyeliner primarily for evening wear. It should be applied with a very fine, sable, artist's brush for an even application. To keep your lashes looking beautiful, apply your mascara lightly, let dry, then gently powder, apply another coat of mascara. Be careful not to let them cake or look too heavy.

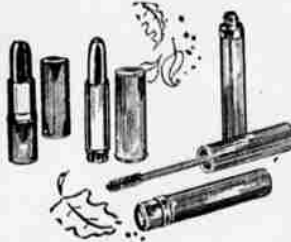

DEAR MISS LAVONNE: I am 53 years old and not five feet tall. I am in fair health. My problem is my legs, they bend at the ankles. I don't want an operation. Is there any other way to make them look more straight? I need your help. Thank you. E. T.

DEAR MRS. E. T.: Your problem is one of the most popular problems with women. With your legs bending at the ankles, this will give you a bowed look. There is an art of proper handling of your legs, whether they are a problem or not. Take care not to turn your toes inward as in pigeon toes. Cross your feet over as you walk, just gently, to try and close that gap around your calf. It is most difficult to show you thru a letter. Most women do not know how to walk gracefully, simply because they have not been taught how. Your walk should be light and airy and graceful. An operation is not necessary, just concentration and practice.
