

Grid Coaches Recommend Return of Free Substitution

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Emphasis in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) convention swings back to the new sports federations today amid indications the official NCAA stand on President Kennedy's arbitration plea in the feud with the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) may come before the day is out.

The federal government has been sounding out the powerful NCAA on the chances of progress in settlement or mediation of the raging dispute over the administration of track and field in the U.S.

The Associated Press has learned that there has been exchange of telegrams between the White House and the NCAA in the last two days. The NCAA is waiting only for release of the reply in Washington to state its position.

The convention, dominated the first three days by federation matters, got a 24-hour respite Sunday when all developments were of a strictly collegiate nature.

Chief among the reports was an announcement that the 24-man advisory committee of the American Football Coaches Association had recommended a return to free and unlimited substitution.

Jack Curtice, former Stanford coach who heads the advisory group, said the nation's collegiate coaches, by more than a 3-to-1 ratio, favored unlimited substitution, which was ruled out after the 1952 season.

The recommendation goes to the eight-man NCAA football rules committee which will begin its annual meeting in Colorado, Calif., on Jan. 11.

The coaches also will recommend, Curtice said, that, if unlimited substitution is unacceptable, a plan be adopted that would allow free substitution each time the clock is stopped.

Curtice refused to speculate whether the rules committee would accept the recommendations. He pointed out, however, that the sentiment in favor of a return to unlimited substitution had jumped from a slight majority to an overwhelming vote in two years.

The NCAA's policy-making council also ended Sunday the one-year probationary periods of the University of Utah, Whitworth College of Spokane, Wash., and Humboldt College of Arcata, Calif.

Utah had been banned from the post-season NCAA basketball tournament for improper financial aid to two student athletes. Whitworth and Humboldt were knocked out of post-season football competition for a year because they participated in the uncertified NAIA football playoffs in 1960.

Nick Rodis, the State Department official who sat in with Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy on the formulation of the abortive coalition plan for track and field in the New York "truce meeting" two months ago, has been here for two days. In his official State Department capacity, he talked to collegiate leaders and coaches about arranging several baseball tours in Latin America.

He was handed the NCAA reply to a White House request that the colleges' position on President Kennedy's suggestion that the sports dispute be submitted to binding arbitration under Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

OSU Faces Crucial Pair With Stanford

CORVALLIS, Ore. — "We're really coming along now but it's going to be a tough series against Stanford."

That's the way Oregon State basketball Coach Slat Gill today summed up the Beavers' upcoming two-game series with the Stanford Indians at Palo Alto, Calif., Friday and Saturday nights.

"Stanford has one of the finest teams in the nation," Gill said. "They're good shooters. And remember, we'll be playing in strange country."

Oregon State, which rolled up its sixth straight victory by defeating Washington State 61-50 here Saturday night, has an 8-3 record. Stanford has a 7-2 mark.

Gill said one of the keys to the Beavers' chances of victory was the ability of 7-foot center Mel Counts "to be able to handle" 6-foot-8 pivotman Tom Dose of the Indians "on a one-on-one situation. He was able to handle Dose last year, and we beat them twice. I think he can do it again this season."

Four players scored in double figures as Oregon State beat Washington State for the second straight night. The Beavers won 74-47 Friday night.

Top Ranked Teams to Face Easy Pickin's This Week

Cincinnati and Loyola of Chicago, the nation's two top college basketball teams, have easy pickin's this week if they don't run into that unlucky number, 13.

The No. 1 ranked Cincinnati Bearcats, two-time NCAA champions, start their remaining 13 games of the regular season with contests against North Texas State and Tulsa this week. The 'Cats swamped both twice each last season.

Second-ranked Loyola also has 13 games remaining on its schedule and opposes Marquette and Western Michigan during the week. The Ramblers split a pair with Marquette during the 1961-62 season and defeated Western Michigan twice en route to a 23-4 record.

Cincinnati made eighth-ranked Wichita its 29th consecutive victim over a two-season span with a 63-50 victory Saturday night. The Bearcats, now 11-0, were hampered by an all-court press at the start and were in front by only 57-47 with five minutes left.

Loyola, held to a five-point lead at halftime by Loyola of New Orleans, scored 19 straight points early in the second half for an 88-53 triumph that upped the Ramblers' record to 13-0. Jerry Harkness tallied 21 points for the Chicagoans.

Ducks Meet Portland U. On Tuesday

Poor Portland University, struggling along with only four victories in 12 games this season, doesn't even get the home court advantage Tuesday night when it entertains Oregon at Memorial Coliseum in Portland.

The Pilots, who've needed all the breaks they could find to get their wins over such teams as Long Beach State and Carroll College, catch the Webfoots just after they've played three games on Portland's home floor.

Most basketball coaches say the home court is worth 10 points a game, but when Oregon goes to Portland a week after playing in the Far West Classic, that theory might just as well go out the window.

To make it worse for the Pilots, the Webfoots are a team which has never had much trouble beating them—no matter where the games have been played. Oregon has won 19 of the 24 games between the two.

Nevertheless, Webfoot coach Steve Belko won't be taking an overconfident time to Portland with him this time. Oregon has had to do some scrambling itself for its wins this season—three in eight tries, so far—and is smart enough not to overlook anyone.

Belko hopes he found an adequate combination of guards in the last game, Dec. 29 against California, when he started Steve Jones and Bob Yates. It was the sixth different pair of backcourt men he had started in eight games.

The inability of the guards to score had been a sore point in earlier games, but Jones, the team's leading scorer while a forward during the first seven games, scored 10 points from the outside against Cal.

Tuesday's game begins at 8 p.m.

Prep Scoring Paced By Dennis Baldridge

Two South Eugene, Pleasant Hill Stars Among Leading Scorers

If things keep going at the present rate, South Eugene can count on a pair of its stars for a total of 39 points a game.

That's the combined average output of Jim Lockard and Jack Willis as the pair rank 1-2 in the District 5-A-1 basketball scoring race.

Lockard, just back after being sidelined three weeks with an ankle injury, pushed through 33 points Friday night to push his average to 20.8 points a game.

Willis, who has carried the load with Lockard and 6-7 John Pinkstaff out, is averaging 18.0.

The honors for the Emerald Empire don't go to the A-1 stars. As usual, it's the Emerald League again where Dennis Baldridge of McKenzie leads with a 28.0 average.

Behind Baldridge comes Bruce Bradshaw and Mike Hill, a pair of Pleasant Hill stars, with averages of 23.1 and 17.6, respectively.

The scoring includes all games through the weekend.

Sponsors of the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament encountered an embarrassing situation Sunday. They had more trophies to award to amateur golfers than they had amateurs.

For the first time in the tournament's history, the amateurs had to take their chances with the professionals when the field was cut to the low 75 scorers Saturday night.

But of the nine amateurs in the field, only one — Larry Bouchey of Inglewood, Calif. — qualified for the final two rounds.
