

Cathy Sheppard, Roosevelt Junior High School student, polishes 1915 Ford roadster owned by Don Short who supervises Job.

Nancy Hale points out horn to Andy Himsworth, 3½, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Himsworth. His mother is the Bethel's Guardian.

Horseless Carriage Trade

Members of Bethel 26, Job's Daughters, did a triple-take the other day when three Ford roadsters of ancient vintage arrived to take advantage of the group's 99-cent benefit carwash. The antique models were driven by their owners, Don Hansen, W. H. Oldaker and Don Short, all members of the Eugene Horseless Carriage Club. While the girls carefully polished up the already shining roadsters (which receive far better care than most new cars), their owners looked on anxiously. Total earnings at the end of the day for the girls: $12 with plenty of laughter and exercise thrown in.

(Register-Guard photos by Phil Wolcott)

Nancy Hale, Judy Boyington and Cathy Sheppard (front to rear) shine 1924 roadster owned by Don Hensen, 1915 roadster owned by W. H. Oldaker and 1915 roadster owned by Don Short. Judy is a Roosevelt Junior High School student.

Nancy Hale, North Eugene High School student, shines up spokes of wheel of Don Short's roadster.

Cathy and Nancy wave goodbye as Don Short drives off in sparkling clean roadster.