Suing the City

Seattle City Council member Kshama Sawant says a few words at a press conference on Jan. 28 at Seattle City Hall, where Jesse Hagopian, at left in suit, and his lawyer, James Bible, announced their lawsuit against the City of Seattle and the Seattle Police Department for the “irrational” pepper spraying of Hagopian by the police on the Martin Luther King holiday.

Solidarity

University of Washington students enter the Gerberding Building on the University of Washington Campus Nov. 12 as a way of showing solidarity with the Black students at the University of Missouri. The students gathered in Red Square before marching through the Gerberding Building, the Suzzallo Library, and the Odegaard Undergrad Library before hitting the streets in the University District.

Shell No

Michael Renaissance Moynihan performed a spoken word piece in May while hundreds of activists opposed to drilling in the arctic briefly blocked the entrances to Terminal 5 at the Port of Seattle because a massive oil rig owned by Shell was docked there. Seattle city leaders fought Shell's right to use the terminal, but the oil company ultimately prevailed after a hearing in September.

We honor the many accomplishments of African Americans.

It is our primary goal as a labor union to better the lives of all people working in the building trades through advocacy, civil demonstration, and the long-held belief that workers deserve a “family wage” – fair pay for an honest day’s work.

A family wage, and the benefits that go with it, not only strengthens families, but also allows our communities to become stronger, more cohesive, and more responsive to their citizens’ needs.

Our family wage agenda reflects our commitment to people working in the building trades, and to workers everywhere. In this small way, we are doing our part to help people achieve the American Dream. This dream that workers can hold dear regardless of race, color, national origin, gender, creed, or religious beliefs.
