Whitaker

Whitaker has typically thrown himself into the part. He learned the idioms of the time (“lousy with jack” means flush with cash and “bangtails” are racehorses). He also was coached by professional craps and poker players. He even visited sion of Erie, which calls for an actor with blue eyes, sandy hair and medium height. No matter, it’s the character that counts.

horses at Aqueduct Race-track.

Other actors who have played Erie on Broadway include Jason Robards, Ben Gazzara and Al Pacino. Whitaker will be the first African-American, but Bagert said asking him was never about skin color.

“I was trying to think of an actor that I thought was one of our greatest character actors who may be willing to take on the incredible mountain to climb of this role,” the producer said.

Whitaker, 54, knows he doesn’t match O’Neil’s vi-minutia of the story itself and the spirits or souls of these particular people,” he said.

Whitaker’s days now are filled with the “Hughie” script. It has taken a lot of work for Whitaker to get here but he seems jazzed by a live audience after years of movie-making.

“You can feel the energy and the movement of their breath or their laughter, which, I think, is one of the things I wanted to feel,” he said. “That kind of connection is powerful.”

We honor the many accomplishments of African Americans.

It is our primary goal as a labor union to better the lives of all people working in the building trades through advocacy, civil demonstration, and the long-held belief that workers deserve a “family wage” - fair pay for an honest day’s work.

A family wage, and the benefits that go with it, not only strengthens families, but also allows our communities to become stronger, more cohesive, and more responsive to their citizens’ needs.

Our family wage agenda reflects our commitment to people working in the building trades, and to workers everywhere. In this small way, we are doing our part to help people achieve the American Dream. This dream that workers can hold dear regardless of race, color, national origin, gender, creed, or religious beliefs.
