Hires

KW: I think the key to the success of the film franchise was the chemistry between Chris Tucker and Jackie Chan. How did you and John Foo go about trying to regenerate that magic?

JH: I completely agree. Fortunately, I think Jon Foo and my chemistry is incredible! Foo is a genuine introvert and I'm a genuine extrovert. We're the perfect ying and yang, on and off camera.

KW: Editor/Legist Patricia Turnier asks: How did you prepare to play Detective James Carter? Did you get any advice from Chris Tucker?

JH: I've been doing stand-up for a strong 8 years and I've been the class clown my entire life, all of which prepared me for a role of this magnitude. Also, I watched all those buddy cop movies again: "48 Hours," "Lethal Weapon," "Bad Boys," etcetera. I didn't get any advice from Tucker, but I assume his advice would've been, "Have fun and be funny!"

KW: Patricia also says: You are an actor, writer and comedian. Which of those endeavors is your favorite?

JH: I honestly love all three equally. Each of those have played a part in getting me to where I'm at in my career right now.

KW: Patricia has another follow-up: Who is your favorite comedian, and do you have a topic you won't touch in a stand-up routine?

JH: Richard Pryor is the Godfather of Comedy. Eddie Murphy is the king. Martin Lawrence is my favorite. Chris Rock is the best. Dave Chapelle is a genius. Bernie Mac is the funniest. I'm a comedy nerd. And... rape is typically never funny.

KW: Sangeetha Subramanian says: Justin, is comedy like writing where an idea just pops in your mind at any given time? If so, what was the strangest occasion on which a joke came to you?

JH: That's a pretty accurate insight, Sangeetha. A funny idea might pop up in your head or you may see something that you think is funny—then you go to a comedy club, say that thought out loud, and see if everyone else finds it funny as well. Some of my funniest thoughts come to me while I'm taking a shower.

KW: Is there any question no one ever asks you, that you wish someone would?

JH: Do I prefer Coke or Pepsi? My answer depends on which one wants to give me an endorsement deal one day.
