Cube

ring in Barbershop: The Next Cut as Calvin and Dante, respectively.

Kam Williams: Hi Cube and Deon, thanks for the interview.

Ice Cube : Hey, hey, what's up, Kam?

Deon Cole: How you doing?

KW: Great! I really loved the film and how you addressed the issue of the murder rate in Chicago.

IC: Yeah, we really wanted to make sure that our movie wasn't all laughs and jokes, and that we were dealing with what a real barber-shop has to deal with.

Sometimes, when you want to laugh, reality steps in. So, we were happy to be able to push it.

KW: How were you able to walk that fine line between humor and the serious material?

IC: I think [director] Malcolm Lee is a real master at being able to make you laugh while bringing serious subject-matter, so the movie doesn't hinge on silliness, but on real life. We were lucky to get him, and he pulled it off pretty brilliantly.

KW: How hard was it trying to reassemble the original cast?

IC: It was easy for the ones that came back, and hard for the ones that didn't. [Laughs] We tried to get everybody back. We got most of the key players, and I was happy to add Common and J.B. Smoove. They were great adds. And Regina Hall was great, too. So, it all felt right.

KW: And Nicki Minaj was larger than life.

IC: Yeah, without a doubt. She plays a great character, and I think people are going to dig her acting skills.

KW: Did you have any trouble balancing egos with so many big names on the set?

IC: No, people came with the right spirit. I think that my "Let's get it done! Let's have fun! Let's make a great movie!" attitude helped. I rarely have problems on my movies with egos and attitudes. And that's how it was with this movie.

Longtime and displaced residents will be given priority. If you or your family were displaced from N/NE Portland, or you're at risk now, you may qualify. Income limits apply.

We honor the many accomplishments of African Americans.

It is our primary goal as a labor union to better the lives of all people working in the building trades through advocacy, civil demonstration, and the long-held belief that workers deserve a "family wage" - fair pay for an honest day's work.

A family wage, and the benefits that go with it, not only strengthens families, but also allows our communities to become stronger, more cohesive, and more responsive to their citizens' needs.

Our family wage agenda reflects our commitment to people working in the building trades, and to workers everywhere. In this small way, we are doing our part to help people achieve the American Dream. This dream that workers can hold dear regardless of race, color, national origin, gender, creed, or religious beliefs.
