to contagious diseases and unnecessary stress. Consider creating a quiet relaxing "down time" space for your little ones to retreat to away from dinner party excitement and/or enthusiastic youth. This could be a washroom, spare bedroom, or any space with a low traffic area. Be wary of leaving newly acquainted individuals with your animals for extended periods for the initial 24 hours after introduction.

Pets many times do not conduct themselves in the company of their "human parents" in the same way they do when left with unknown family members and friends.

Incorporating these tips into your holiday preparations should aid you in creating a fun, festive, and safe atmosphere for your human and animal family. I am wishing you and your family a wonderful holiday and a Happy New Year!

Do you have a pet topic you'd like to learn more about? I'd love to hear from you! Write me at drjasmine@theskanner.com.
