Point in Time Count Set for Feb. 22-28 Due to Winter Storms

The Joint Office of Homeless Services has set the 2017 Point in Time Count of people experiencing homelessness in Multnomah County for Feb. 22 - 28, 2017. The point-in-time count provides a snapshot of people experiencing homelessness at a given point in time in Portland, Gresham and Multnomah County. It is required by the federal government for metropolitan jurisdictions that receive federal funds for homeless services.

The count had been scheduled to begin Jan. 25. Organizers said today they are rescheduling the five-day effort as unprecedented severe weather has disrupted the population numerous times in the last month and exhausted the volunteers needed to conduct it.

Near record-breaking snow and cold since late December prompted both the city of Portland and state of Oregon to issue emergency declarations.

Severe weather warming centers operated 23 nights out of the last 42, including 16 of the last 17. Last night, 807 people were in additional severe weather warming center beds - a more than 50 percent increase over our normal seasonal and year-round emergency night shelter population.

Existing professional and volunteer outreach teams, as well as police and fire personnel, have been working around-the-clock through multiple weather events to deliver aid and services.

These extraordinary efforts have required the full attention of a wide range of homeless service providers, outreach workers, and volunteers who would normally be engaged in preparation for the Point in Time Count.

In the coming week, the Joint Office for Homeless Services will reach out to participating sites and volunteers to schedule trainings. To learn more about the count, or to sign up to volunteer, please visit <http://ahomeforeveryone.net/street-count/>

Albina Community Bank Announces New Leadership

Albina Community

Bank and Beneficial State Bank are taking steps to increase impact in 2017 with several key leadership changes that build on the work of departing Albina CEO Cheryl Cebula.

A 30-year banking veteran, Cebula joined Albina in 2003 and most recently returned the bank to strength and stability after the turbulent financial crisis. In preparation for Cebula's March 31, 2017 departure to pursue other opportunities, her leadership roles are being assumed by Kat Taylor and Dan Skaff, co-CEOs of Beneficial State. The bank became a majority investor in the recapitalization of Albina in 2013 and the two organizations share a history of mission-driven "beneficial" banking as Community Development Financial Institutions (CDFIs) and Certified B Corporations.

The banks are integrating key functions to tap into strengths and bolster mission alignment. Albina leaders Sue Campo and Linda Merrill will take on expanded roles as president and chief financial officer, and senior vice president and head of retail banking Pacific Northwest respectively, managing responsibilities for both Albina and Beneficial State functions. Randell Leach, president of commercial banking at Beneficial State, is now also chief credit officer of Albina.

The changes come at a time of strength. Since Beneficial State's 2013 investment, loans have increased by 47.1 percent to $118 million; deposits have grown 29.4 percent to $151 million; mission-related and CDFI loans to nonprofits and start-ups, and minority- and women-owned businesses now account for 88 percent of its loans by number and 87 percent of its loans by dollar; and its 45 employees have volunteered more than 4,000 hours since 2013 in support of local nonprofits.

Portland Theater Companies Participate in Ghostlight Project

On Jan. 19, Portland theater companies, including Portland Center Stage at The Armory, Artists Repertory Theatre, Oregon Children's Theatre, Original Practice Shakespeare Festival, PSU Stage at Portland State University, Third Rail Repertory Theatre, and Triangle Productions will join theater communities across the country in hosting gatherings for The Ghostlight Project. Inspired by the tradition of leaving a "ghost light" on in a darkened theater for safety, artists and communities across the country will make or renew a pledge to stand for and protect the values of inclusion, participation and compassion for everyone - regardless of race, class, religion, country of origin, immigration status, (dis)ability, gender identity, or sexual orientation.

ALL are welcome. Lighting events will happen at several locations in Portland. Details are below for events at Portland Center Stage at The Armory, Art-
