Dyson

terested you in The Raw Word?

MED: An opportunity to launch into daytime talk, and to bring both gravity and humor to bear upon subjects people across the country are interested in, from lighthearted topics like what’s in your belly or in your car, to what motivates us as a nation to act and behave in the ways we do. I look forward to weighing-in on all that stuff.

KW: How did you come to be paired with Claudia Jordan and Dr. Dan Ratner as co-hosts?

MED: Through our executive producer, Andre Jetmir. He worked his magic behind the scenes, bringing us all together.

KW: What makes your talk show unique?

MED: Well, you’ve got

Dyson... you’ve got Ratner... and you’ve got Jordan. Each of us brings a significant following and some impressive credentials from our spheres of influence to this endeavor, Dan as a therapist, Claudia as an actress, talk show host and reality-TV star, and I’ve been a writer, professor and public intellectual for awhile. So, we offer a unique mix of gifts that I hope will appeal to members of the audience.

KW: Editor/Legist Patricia Turnier says: I am impressed by your ability to write numerous excellent books. Most authors are not capable of following up a great opus with another best seller. What advice do you have for aspiring authors about consistently writing compelling, informative books?

MED: First, you definitely want to only take on projects you feel passionately about. Second, you want to conduct significant research on each subject. And third, you want your writing to be eloquent and reflect serious scholarship. The best writers are re-writers. So, stay at it, keep on top of your game, and continue to be curious about the world.

KW: Patricia would also like to hear your opinion of this quote from James Baldwin: “It is only in his music, which Americans are able to admire because a protective sentimentality limits their understanding of it, that the Negro in America has been able to tell his story.”

MED: He often talked about how music was where black people were able to be most honest and tell as much truth as the world could bear. At that level, they were eye-to-eye with truths that needed to be explored.

He was giving love to jazz and the blues because he felt that they were simpatico with his ambition as a writer to tap the same wellspring of emotions, intelligence and reflection.
