reported, again quoting a source.

“The offer and exposure would have been great for Rihanna as she’s planning a new album and tour but she stuck to what’s right in her eyes,” the source added.

The refusal by Rihanna likely came as a shock to NFL and CBS because the Super Bowl halftime show is the biggest stage in pop music and routinely has an audience of more than 100 million.

Some halftime shows have been legendary. Some were great and others not-so-good.

Social media exploded in support of Rihanna after she turned down the biggest stage in the world.

“I’m so here for @Rihanna turning down Super Bowl halftime to support @Kaepernick7. If you don’t stand for something, you’ll fall for anything,” wrote Twitter user @DaPrincess.

Facebook and Instagram users were just as supportive, many noting that with a superstar making such a bold statement, Kaepernick’s message might finally begin to penetrate inside the offices of NFL teams whose owners appear to have continually mistaken the former quarterback’s kneeling as an affront to veterans and the flag.

Kaepernick has maintained that he began kneeling during the national anthem to bring attention to ongoing police brutality.

Sheridan

stories are verified. “The previous policy was catch and release, which I definitely don’t agree with.”

The prison is Sheridan’s largest employer, though the town of 6,000 has paid little attention to the migrant issue, the mayor said.

The volunteers are mostly from other communities in the Willamette Valley, including Salem and Portland, Oregon’s largest city.

Kathy Daviess said she got involved because “we’ve got a legal system, and it’s supposed to apply to everyone.” Her husband, who spent his career with the Air Force in uniform and as a contractor, felt the immigrants were being denied due process.

The migrants were granted access to lawyers after the American Civil Liberties Union of Oregon filed a lawsuit alleging they were held largely incommunicado. The detainees told federal public defenders they were initially confined to cells for up to 23 hours a day. “It’s not right. We don’t do that,” Norm Daviess said.

Immigration and Customs Enforcement declined to comment, citing pending litigation.

Kathleen Moss, from nearby Carlton, said it’s been rewarding to coordinate around 60 drivers and people offering respite centers.

my life,” the nutritionist and advocate for foster children said.

Volunteers have watched detainees emerge from the prison, surveying the nearby forests, hills and fields for the first time since they arrived.
