Baldwin

percent off all of Baldwin's books for the rest of the year.

"We have never ever thought about doing this with another author," McPherson said. "I don't know that we'll do another 'author of the year' next year because there aren't that many that have this kind of long-term resonance across so many genres. I think it's kind of a one-of-a-kind thing."

McPherson and Bissell were motivated to create this likely one-off program after attending a panel in January that featured poet Robin Coste Lewis, memoirist Casey Gerald, and fellow bookstore-owner Hannah Oliver Depp. Each speaker read favorite Baldwin excerpts and spoke personally about how they first "met" his work. McPherson and Bissell walked away from the presentation deeply impressed, with the sense that Baldwin — who once identified himself as "the Angry Young Man in New York" — still had the presence and body of work to justify more than a month in his honor.

"We just want everyone to take advantage of it, not so much because of the store, but just the role I think Baldwin can play in people's lives," McPherson said. "It's about introducing him to people who had maybe read one thing, re-introducing them to the wide array of material he has." Founded in 1992, Broadway Books has remained at the same location, and though it has changed hands, it has consistently been women-owned.

Broadway Books is located at 1714 NE Broadway, Portland. For more
