Working Men's Meeting. The working men held a very large meeting last night, to urge upon our lawmakers the great importance of promptly adopting such measures as will revive our industries. In order that employment may be obtainable by the tens and hundreds of thousands now in enforced idleness, Peter Cooper, president and Congressman Kelly and May or Opldyke sent letters regretting that they could not be present.

Peter Cooper, in his address, said justice cannot be established and the general welfare of the nation cannot be effectually promoted without resuming the resumption act of 1875 and substituting a currency bill similar to the one passed by the House of Representatives in 1862, which made treasury notes a legal tender for all debts and duties, and made them convertible into interest-bearing bonds of the government.

When a true American system of finance is adopted, which shall put all that circulates as money entirely and exclusively under control of government, making it receivable for all duties and debts, employment for all the working classes and prosperity for the whole country will be the natural and permanent result.

EXPLANATION.—A subscriber and granger, wishes to know why the Executive Committee of the P. of R., (Incorporated the State Grange Company with only a capital stock of seventy dollars. We understand that this was ten dollars for each member of the Committee; that they do not expect to either use their own money in business or jeopardize their property; but they incorporated in order that they might be able to take legal bonds from the several officers who handle the funds of the State Grange, of what ever kind, but more especially for the purpose of securing the business fund that is being subscribed and placed under the control of the Executive Committee. We also learn that the business proposition adopted by the State Grange last fall is being handsomely responded to from many quarters, so that there is no fear but that the State Agent will have means to carry on his business satisfactorily. The several grangers subscribing according to their means, and in this manner it is possible to raise a handsome capital and make the agency a remunerative institution.
