

THE HOME CIRCLE.

SALEM, FRIDAY, JAN. 25, 1878.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying beam, Had waked the purple hills to fire; And etched and drew the spire...

The tide was ebbing on the strand, And stooping low its silver crest; The crimson sea weed lay at rest...

Two hearts have met to say farewell, At even when the sun went down; Each life sound from the busy town...

Bridal Outfits.

Jennie June writes upon the subject of economical bridal outfits as follows:

Many young ladies write to know how a small amount of money can be used to the best advantage in procuring a bridal outfit...

Cashmere is so fashionable now that a cashmere costume, which has become indispensable, is also perfectly safe and ladylike...

The best bonnet should be of a kind that would do to wear with all best dresses, not made strictly to harmonize with one...

As we stand by the sea-shore and watch the rolling tides come in, we retreat, thinking we shall be overwhelmed; soon, however, they flow back...

HYMENS DOINGS.

Marriage of Norris H. Looney, Esq., and Miss Nettie E. Clarke—The Beauty and Chivalry of Salem Assembled to Witness the Auspicious Event—Full Particulars of the Event—List of Presents, Etc.

It is probable that no social event in the Capital City has been anticipated with more interest than the wedding reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Clarke, last evening.

As was expected from the extended circle of friends and acquaintances of the host and hostess, a large number of invited guests were present to witness the marriage of Mr. Norris H. Looney to their daughter, Miss Harriet B. Clarke.

At the hour fixed the bridal party entered the parlor, the "observed of all observers."

THE BRIDE.

Looked petite and fair, attired in a robe of rich white gros-grain silk, made in princess style, with trimmings of the same material...

BEAUTIFUL GIFTS.

Judge P. P. Prim and daughter—Silver cake basket. Mrs. S. R. Jessup—Gold lined card receiver. Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Craig—Butter dish of silver and glass.

Mr. Myer Harris—Pair of napkin rings. Mr. T. B. Trevitt—Gold lined berry spoon. Mr. Squire Farrar—Carver, fork and steel, ivory handles.

When the patriarch is starved, he steals like any other man. The trainer remains sound, while the horse dies. He is the richest man, who is content with what he already has.

Accept this token of regard, Our much esteemed friend; In sunshine use the BEGGY part, In storms the OTHER end.

After the above we may safely conclude that we have entertained among us, unawares, a bard who will give our State a name and fame we had not dreamed of...

As we stand by the sea-shore and watch the rolling tides come in, we retreat, thinking we shall be overwhelmed; soon, however, they flow back...

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Breyma, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Steiner, and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Murphy.

Among the noted guests were Gov. Chadwick and wife, Judges Prim, McArthur and Watson; Miss Genevieve Wilson, of the Dalles...

Many of the toilets were new and handsome, tasteful and becoming—to particularize would seem invidious; dancing was kept up until a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Looney have taken up their residence with Mrs. Jos. Hoyt, where they expect to remain during the winter.

In our report last evening there was an accidental omission of mention of some of the wedding gifts, owing to their being brought in after our list was made out.

The Telephone in a Nutshell.

The New York World explains, in a way that any one should be able to comprehend, the telephone in its simplest construction, as now exhibited in New York, thus: "The telephone is operated entirely without the use of the galvanic battery, being thus simplified to the last degree."

"Attracting the attention of the gentleman at the Broad street office, the reporter was directed to apply the instrument to his ear while a conversation was held between the two points."

When the patriarch is starved, he steals like any other man. The trainer remains sound, while the horse dies. He is the richest man, who is content with what he already has.

BREVITIES.

When the patriarch is starved, he steals like any other man. The trainer remains sound, while the horse dies.

He is the richest man, who is content with what he already has. Work for other people's vanity, not your own; that is the art of arts.

The best law for man is the thing that is and as it is; and more beauty can be got out of truth, rightly taken, than was ever given by fiction.

People in Richmond, Va., complain that they can't sleep at nights on account of the tinkle of the bar-room bell-punch all over town.

It has been found that kerosene oil will remove dandruff and give the hair a fine gloss, but the aristocracy will not use it on account of its cheapness.

A Kentucky man poisoned some watermelons for thieves, and then, by mistake, sold them to customers. Lacking the nerve of a druggist, he has fled.

Experiments in a mine in Cornwall, England, with the telephone, point to the probability of its being employed in conveying signals from deep mines to the distance.

A grub of a boring species was found in a four-foot lath the other day, in Berlin, Conn., that must have been in the wood 13 years at least. It had eaten almost the whole length of the lath, leaving only a shell.

Samuel G. Robinson, who died a few days ago at Augusta, Me., at the age of 70, was the champion player upon the fife, piccolo and clarinet in that region, and could play 4,000 tunes from memory.

CHOICE RECIPES.

CORN DODGERS.—Salt and scald sifted corn meal. When cool wet the hands in cold water and mould into cakes like biscuits, but not very thick.

"German Syrup."

No other medicine in the world was ever given such a test of its curative qualities as Rossbee's German Syrup. In three years two million four hundred thousand small bottles of this medicine were distributed free of charge by Druggists in this country to those afflicted with Consumption, Asthma, Croup, severe Coughs, Pneumonia and other diseases of the Throat and Lungs, giving the American people undeniable proof that German Syrup will cure them.
